Socreds Win In Landslide

EDMONTON (CP)—Alberta's Social Credit party, in power for 28 years, scored a landslide victory in Monday's general election.

The result was the same as the last general election in 1959 —a Social Credit majority of 57.

Complete party standings showed Social Credit with 60 members in the new 63-seat legislature. Liberals doubled their strength to two. a Coalition member was re-elected but Progressive Conservatives and the New Democratic Party failed to elect a single member.

In the 1959 election for a 65-seat House, Social Credit elected 61 members. Liberals one, Conservatives one, Coalition one, and Independent Social Credit one.

All three opposition leaders lost on their first bid for a legislature seat.

Progressive Conservative Leader Milton Harradence was defeated by Donald Fleming of the Social Credit party in Calgary West.

Neil Reimer, New Democratic Party leader, failed to unseat Lou Heard of Social Credit in Edmonton Northeast.

Liberal Leader David Hunter lost to Social Credit's Antonio Aloisio in Athabasca.

MANNING WINS

Premier Manning won easy personal victory in Edmonton Strathcona East where one of his opponents was Conservative Oscar Kruger, all-star defensive half for Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Football Conference.

Liberals picked up Calgary Glenmore with candidate Bill Dickie. The constituency was won in the last election by Conservative Ernest Watkins, who retired from politics.

Social Credit won three new seats—Edmonton Jasper Place, Three Hills and Calgary Queens Park.

F. L. Gainer, a Coalition candidate, was returned in Banff-Cochrane.

Two other opposition members from the last legislature were in close contests. Liberal Mike Maccagno was ahead in Lac la Biche and Earl Ansley, Independent Social Credit, trailed in Leduc.

Closest battle was in Ponoka constituency where Neville Roper, Independent Social Credit, and Glen Johnston, seeking re-election for the Social Credit party, exchange leads.

Premier Manning said he was not surprised by the result.

"I fully expected the government would be returned with an overwhelming majority."

Mr. Harradence said re-elec-

March Marks Revolt

BERLIN (UPI) — West Berliners, 1,000 strong marched on the Berlin wall last night in a demonstration against the Soviet's crushing of the East German revolt 10 years ago. Police used water cannon to drive back the crowd.

West Berlin police rushed reinforcements to the Friedrichstrasse crossing point — the U.S. army's Checkpoint Charlie —and sealed off the border before the crowd, made up mostly of youths, could touch off a new East-West incident.

TOWARD WALL

The 1,000 demonstrators had been taking part in a torchlight parade held to mourn the workers who died in the revolt of June 17, 1953. Two columns of 500 each split off and marched toward the wall down Stresemannstrasse in the American sector.

They began shouting, "Freedom for the zone."

Several hundred demonstrators marched toward Checkpoint Charlie.

West Berlin police turned a water cannon on the crowd approaching the checkpoint and drove it back.

TORCHLIGHT

The torchlight parade was held after 100,000 West Berliners rallied in front of City Hall for German unity and self-determination for East Germans.

The parade route was from city hall to a monument on the Kreuzberg Hill. The parade to t : monument was orderly, but hundreds of demonstrators aroused by hotheads split off and marched to the wall.

Earlier Monday, the East German Communists charged that West German "bandits" damaged the trade ministry in East Berlin with a bomb and set other bombs that did not explode. However, the building did not appear to be damaged.

NO INJURIES

No injuries were reported in the explosion about 400 yards from the wall. Western officials said the bombs were apparently set off by anti-Communist East Germans.

As the demonstrators approached the area last night, they faced a cordon of 200 police, who ordered the marchers to disperse and tried to persuade them to leave the border.

"You can't act this way on a solemn anniversary," a police officer shouted to the crowd.

Leaders of the march on the wall said the demonstration was organized by the Peter Fechter Action Group, named after a young refugee who was shot when trying to escape and then left to die.

Grudging Support For Mac

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Macmillan won a grudging vote of confidence Monday night after a slashing opposition attack on his handling of the Profumo-Keeler sex and security scandal and defections in his own Conservative party.

By 321 to 252, the 69-year-old Macmillan was given a mandate in the House of Commons to carry on as chief of government.

But he is expected to step down soon, possibly this summer, and let a younger man try to clean up the Conservative party's badly-smudged image.

MARGIN SHRINKS

The Conservatives normally have a 97-seat edge over the combined opposition in the House but Macmillan's victory margin was only 69.

The closeness of the vote reflected growing discontent among Conservatives with Macmillan's leadership. One Conservative suggested in the debate that Macmillan step aside soon.

28 TORIES ABSTAIN

Twenty - eight Conservatives abstained from voting as an expression of their displeasure with Macmillan's stewardship.

Reuters news agency said the outcome was a heavy moral defeat for Macmillan, since before the opposition began its massive onslaught on him in

Osteopath Remanded For Week

LONDON (Reuters)—Osteopath Stephen Ward was ordered held in custody for another week Monday afer police testified one witness in his case was warned to leave the country within 48 hours.

Ward, 50, is a key figure in the scandal surrounding former war minister John Profumo who resigned over his affair with model Christine Keeler.

Ward was remanded on a charge of living on the earnings of prostitution. Police said further similar charges would be laid against him.

RED SPACEGAL BEATS COOPER

* * *

MOSCOW (UPI) — Dimple-chinned Valentina (Seagull) Tereshkova, singing to the stars, beat the American man-in-space record Monday.

* * *

Moscow Radio reported the 26-year-old brunette had completed 23 orbits that had carried her more than a half million miles through space. She messaged her mother not to worry.

Her second day in space put her ahead of America's space star, Gordon Cooper, who completed 22.9 orbits last month, and she was still orbiting.

* * *

The Russians also disclosed that the first woman to explore the mysteries of space had scored another cosmic first:

Flying to within 3.1 miles of her companion astronaut, Lt.-Col. Valery (Hawk) Bykovsky in the closest that space ships ever have come to a linkup.

Just before the whirling pair went to sleep in their separate space ships again last night, Tass news agency said Valentina sent this message:

"Tell Mama, and all the mothers of the world, that I have great confidence in my ship. It was built by the Soviet people — it is a very dependable machine."

* * *

The Tass correspondent, reporting from the "flight control centre," [illegible] following a conversation with Bykovsky, she could be heard singing.

"But it was impossible to recognize the song Valentina was singing to the stars," Tass said.

It is said that in between conversations, the flight control centre broadcast Tchaikovsky's First Piano Concero to the orbiting couple at Bykovsky's request. Tchaikovsky also is one of Valentina's favorites.

* * *

Bykovsky's orbiting time had changed from an original 88.4 minutes to a flat 88 minutes and there was some speculation he might have to be brought back to earth before the end of the eight days originally planned for his flight.

By 10 p.m. Monday, Bykovsky had made 54 trips around the earth and Valentina had made 23.

One report mentioned the possibility of a third cosmonaut being placed in orbit soon, but there was no official confirmation of this.

* * *

Several hours after "Valya," as she has come to be known, entered her second day in space she had committed only one known miscue.

Moscow Radio reported she overslept during her first slumber in the hurtling Vostok 6. The chief designer of the Russian girl's space ship failed to raise her when he signaled her from the ground.

But after some minutes delay, during which the caller contacted Bykovsky, Miss Tereshkova came on the radio and apologized for oversleeping.

* * *

There seemed to be no chance the two space voyagers would try to make a physical contact in space. Their trajectories were slightly different although both were traveling in the same 65 degree orbit in relation to the equator.

Tass said more precise data of the trajectory of the two flights showed that Sunday the plump but attractive cosmonette and the darkly handsome cosmonaut had flown within five kilometers (3.1 miles) of each other.

This bettered the four miles apart achieved by Russia's last space twins, Pavel Popovich and Andrian Nikolayev, last August.

Since Popovich and Nikolayev reported later they had sighted each other, presumably Bykovsky and the brunette cosmonette could see each other even more clearly.

At 3 p.m. Monday, Bykovsky, 28-year-old Red air force pilot, started his fourth day in space. He then had completed

Cosmonaut Romance Rumored

MOSCOW (UPI) — Those romance rumors already are starting up about the world's first space woman, Valentina Tereshkova.

Her boy-friend is supposed to be fellow cosmonaut Andrian Nikolayev, the only bachelor among Russia's five experienced spacemen.

* * *

Some stories have gone so far as to say they are engaged and hope to be married after Valentina returns to earth.

Others say they are just good friends, as any man and woman working close together in the same profession might become.

* * *

Nikolayev, who noted through a 64-orbit journey around the earth last August, was said earlier to have had another girl-friend who broke with him when he went secretly into cosmonaut training and never could explain to her the reason for his long absences.

* * *

Stand-In Was Ready

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet press disclosed Monday that Russia has a number of cosmonettes and one had been ready to replace Valentina Tereshkova on her history-making flight into space if it had been necessary.

As usual, the woman's name was not disclosed.

The Communist Party newspaper Pravda said the stand-by cosmonette is "just as talented as Valya (diminutive for Valentina), able to take [illegible] into account . . . and [illegible] ready to replace her at any minute in the cabin of the cosmic space ship."

Pravda said both girls watched the launching of Valentina's space twin, Valery Bykovsky, in Vostok 5.

Valentina 'Feels Fine'

Valentina Tereshkova, 26, first woman launched by Russians into orbit around earth, apparently takes food from container during training session. Soviet news agency Tass said Miss Tereshkova an ex-fire factory worker, "withstood well the orbiting of space ship Vostok 6. She feels fine." (AP Photofax.)

Confers with Leaders

JFK Seeks Rights Plan

* * *

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy conferred with congressional leaders of both parties Monday in his search for a civil rights program that one conferee said "will cover everything."

This assessment came from Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois who told reporters he believes there is an "area of agreement" between the Republicans and administration leaders on a number of proposals.

* * *

Kennedy continued his efforts to ease racial tension by calling in 200 religious leaders for discussion. The president wants them to exert moral leadership in their communities to bring about racial equality.

Kennedy expects to send a special message to Congress Wednesday outlining a series of civil rights proposals and signalling the start of what promises to become a bitter senate battle with southerners attempting to prevent a vote by filibustering.

In an effort to round up as much national support as possible behind his program, Kennedy plans another meeting with state governors today.

Race Violence Threatened

CAMBRIDGE, Md. (UPI) —A Negro leader told a cheering rally last night that demonstrations will resume unless suspended negotiations over racial grievances begin again. He said the federal government had promised to move into the situation if necessary.

Reginald Robinson, representing the Student Non-Violent Co-ordinating Committee, said Negroes will take to the streets of Cambridge in defiance of national guard troops unless negotiations are under way by 8 p.m. today.

Crowds Pay Tribute To Murdered Negro

WASHINGTON (AP) — Solemn Negroes by the hundreds, young and old, turned out Monday to honor the memory of Medgar Evers, slain Mississippi field secretary for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

About 500 persons, including a few whites, marched a mile from Union Station to a funeral home behind the hearse carrying his body.

Other hundreds watched from sidewalks and homes and another big crowd assembled near the funeral home to see six Negro desegregation leaders and Arnold Felman, director of the American Veterans Committee, carrying the white, flag-draped coffin inside.

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Charles Evers, brother of slain integration leader Medgar Evers, sought Monday to settle an internal struggle for Negro leadership in the tense civil rights battle in this staunchly segregated Mississippi capital.

Whatever the outcome, new street demonstrations were anticipated here. Other protests were expected to resume in the south after a weekend of violence in North Carolina and protests in other southern states.

The fight pitted militant Negroes demanding immediate action at whatever price against the disciples of the non-violent movement whose leader is Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. of Atlanta.

Rocky Point Explosion Injures Two

By BOB PETHICK

Two civilian naval workers were seriously injured in an explosion at Rocky Point arsenal yesterday.

Most seriously hurt was Frank A. Gibbons, 45, of 1045 Esquimalt Road. He was listed in poor condition in St. Joseph's Hospital with injuries to his arms, hands and abdomen.

J. A. Valentine, 62, of 622 Head Street, was in fair condition. His left hand had to be amputated as a result of the explosion.

BLOOD ON WALLS

Blood spattered the walls of the heavily-constructed explosives proving building. Valentine, though in great pain, remained conscious and stumbled from the building to get help.

First aid was administered by fellow inspector Hal Wallace during the wait for the ambulance. One man was conveyed in an ambulance from Belmont Park, the second in an ambulance from HMC Dockyard.

HEARING OPENS

The navy immediately opened a preliminary hearing into events leading up to the explosion that injured the two inspectors of naval ordnance.

Both are veterans in the department of national defence and were conducting routine proving tests at the time of the explosion.

PREPARE BOOSTER

A naval spokesman said the two inspectors were preparing an explosive booster enclosed in a brass container for routine test firing. The component being tested was two ounces of explosive.

Both men are members of a close-knit inspectors' team that has been together for more than 16 years. Friends said they are popular members of the staff.

The navy last night officially classed the explosion as "minor." There was no damage to the building where the explosion occurred.

A spokesman stressed the buildings are designed so that an explosion in one will not be a hazard to other buildings.

UNAWARE OF ACCIDENT

Due to the way buildings are dispersed for safety, most of the workers at the arsenal were unaware an accident had occurred until quitting time at 4:30 p.m. The explosion went off about 3:30 p.m.

It was believed to be the first accident with explosives to occurt at Rocky Point. A full scale enquiry will likely follow the preliminary hearing.

Pest Plans Changed

OTTAWA (CP) — A conference of North American forestry experts was told Monday that public resentment against the use of chemical insect controls is forcing the U.S. forest service into a crash program of research on biological control.

Edward Cliff, chief of the U.S. forest service, warned that "a strong body of public resentment" has formed as the result of Rachel Carson's best-seller, Silent Spring.

Dock Talks Go On

VANCOUVER (CP) — The two parties in a threatened longshoremen's strike met Monday and will meet again today.

George McKee, general manager of the British Columbia Shipping Federation, said after the meetings:

"We're still talking and we'll be back again tomorrow . . . I'm pleased that the talks are continuing."

He declined to discuss what was talked about with representatives of the Interngtional Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (CLC).

It was the first meeting since members of the union voted 98.5 per cent to empower the executive to call a strike if necessary.

Ray Smith, chairman of the negotiating committee, described the vote as a "club."

Macmillan Wins Vote

Monday's vote on the Profumo scandal, government sources forecast that no more than 15 Conservative members would fail to support him.

Reuters said political observers predicted before the debate that if more than 20 Conservatives abstained, Macmillan might be forced to reconsider his reported decision not to resign at least until the Profumo scandal died down.

As the prime minister left the House of Commons after the vote there were cries of "resign" from opposition Labor party members and cheers from the Conservatives.

QUESTION BLOCKED

Labor Leader Harold Wilson tried, on a point of order, to ask Macmillan what he planned to do, but the Speaker refused to allow the question.

Wilson, who would become prime minister if his party wins the next election, led the attack on Macmillan.

He declared the scandal of high and low life, Britain's most sensational in the century, was "a triumphant success for the Soviet espionage authorities." He accused Macmillan of having "gambled with the nation's security."

Macmillan claimed he was duped by his loose-living war minister, John Profumo, and left in the dark by the security services in the ensuing scandal involving also a Soviet naval attache.

Macmillan disclosed that on three occasions the security services he heads failed to pass on to him vital information relating to Profumo's relations with party girl Christine Keeler and her sponsor, Dr. Stephen Ward. These contacts were while Miss Keeler was simultaneously romancing the Soviet naval attache Capt. Yevgeni Ivanov.

To gasps of astonishment he commented: "It is very unfortunate this information was not given to me."

The prime minister spoke after Wilson charged Macmillan was guilty of "a grave dereliction of duty" and "inadequacy" in handling the affair that has rocked the nation.

Macmillan vowed he had always acted with honor, but admitted the affair had struck a blow at the foundations on which British political life rests.

Wilson said most Britons were "sick at heart" over the affair. The time had come for the whole truth to be bared. He warned Macmillan that Parliament would judge him guilty, too, if he withholds information that might at some time soon become the subject of new disclosures.

Nigel Birch, a Conservative member and once a high treasury official, challenged Macmillan's contention that it was natural to accept Profumo's denial of being involved with Miss Keeler.

NOT LIKE MONK

"He (Profumo) has never struck me as a man at all like a cloistered monk," he declared. He said that, since Miss Keeler was a prostitute, it was improbable the relationship was platonic.

"What are whores about?" he demanded.

TIME IS NOW

Jo Grimond, leader of the minority Liberal party, said the main question now was whether a government headed by Macmillan "can command respect and prestige sufficient to rule the country."

Wilson, confident and aggressive, pointed his finger toward Macmillan at one point and recalled that a London night club owner recently offered Miss Keeler $14,000 weekly to appear in his floor show.

"There is something utterly nauseating about a system of society which pays a harlot 25 times as much as it pays its prime minister, 250 times as much as it pays a member of Parliament and 500 times as much as it pays to some of its ministers of religion," the Labor leader cried.

Roommate In Trouble

LONDON (AP) — The House of Commons was told Monday that Marilyn (Mandy) Rice-Davies, 18, a roommate of party girl Christine Keeler, is being kept in Britain because a charge is being prepared against her.

Attorney-General Sir John Hobson made the statement in reply to a question by Labor MP Marcus Lipton, who raised the issue during the debate on the Profumo scandal.

tion of Social Credit is a "tribute to the genius" of Mr. Manning.

He said the Conservatives planned to start organizing for the next election.

Mr. Hunter said he was disappointed that voters didn't elect a strong opposition. "A strong opposition can be of very great use to the people."

He said he did not think the Liberal power policy — takeover of private power companies in the province—had any particular bearing on the failure of Liberal candidates.

A record 715,600 persons were eligible to vote compared with 649,400 in the last general election in 1959. Total vote in 1959 was 414,500—64.16 per cent of the total eligible.

SIXTY-TWO SEATS

Sixty-two of the legislature's 63 seats were contested by 224 candidates. One seat was filled two weeks ago when a Social Credit cabinet minister was re-elected by acclamation.

Redistribution cut two rural seats from the last 65-seat legislature.

STANDINGS

Standing when the legislature was dissolved last month was Social Credit 60, Liberal 1, Progressive Conservative 1, Coalition 1, Independent Social Credit 1, Vacant 1. The vacancy was caused by the death in March of Rev. Peter Dawson, Social Credit member for Little Bow, who was speaker of the house for many years.

Social Credit, in power for 28 years and led for 20 years by Premier E. C. Manning, elected 61 members in the last general election. The party won all four byelections since then.

QUIET CAMPAIGN

Balloting followed six weeks of quiet campaigning in which new leaders of the three main opposition parties concentrated on winning personal election in constituencies held by Social Credit in the last house. All the leaders were chosen within the last 18 months.

The campaign was the eighth for Mr. Manning since 1935 and the sixth as premier.

49 orbits and covered more than 1,242,000 miles aboard Vostok 5. Also at that time, aboard Vostok 6, Valentina had completed 18 orbits and 26½ hours.

At that point only Nikolayev had travelled in space longer than Bykovsky. He spent 94 hours and 22 minutes — just short of four days—and completed 64 orbits.

The Soviet press sought to assure the world that there was nothing about a space flight to jeopardize a woman's child-bearing ability.

"Space flights which have not impaired the health of men cosmonauts, are also safe to women," he said. "They will not affect the principal functions of the woman's organism connected with child-bearing."

Tass news agency stressed that the main purpose of the flight duet was to glean further information on the affects of weightlessness and other phenomena on cosmonauts in preparation for eventual flights to the planets.

* * *

Physiologist V. Parin, writing in Izvestia, said information from Miss Tereshkova's ship showed "the organism of the woman cosmonaut is in a physiologically normal state," meaning "we are beginning to make ourselves at home in the universe."

In the past few days the Soviet press has written about projects to send groups of rockets aloft with component parts for space stations which would be used as platforms for launchings to the moon and other planets.

* * *

The dual flights last August and now appear designed to test just how these components can be marshalled in space.

At Manchester, England, Sir Bernard Lovell, director of the radio-astronomy station at Jodrell Bank, said he thought the Soviets might send up a third ship in connection with such a project.

He said the launching of a woman into space was no stunt but meant that Russia plans to "colonize" space, perhaps in 25 years or so.

Apples Have No Special Effect On Cholesterol in the Blood

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband, following a thrombosis, read that the pectin in apples served as a natural preventive against the deposit of cholesterol in the blood vessels.

He asked two doctors. One said apples might well be beneficial and in no way harmful. The other said they seemed not only to curb the accumulation of cholesterol but were suspected of dissolving that which already had accumulated.

Recently a friend who is taking anti-cholesterol medication and is on a strict diet said he was forbidden to eat apples, stating that they were very high in cholesterol. Can you explain this seeming contradiction? —E.A.

Apples are not high in cholesterol. Your friend may have been told not to eat them for some other reason—or maybe he just doesn't like apples and uses "diet" as an excuse.

I notice that one doctor said pectin might well be beneficial, and the other said apples seemed to help, or were suspected of it. In other words, they gave a couple of mild "maybe" answers that don't mean much except that we have no reason to suspect apples of being harmful.

Diet (let alone any single item of food) is only one of several factors involving cholesterol—age, heredity, exercise, overweight, smoking, and the amount of animal fats eaten over the last 20, 30 or 40 years all have a bearing on the condition, so it becomes rather farfetched to try to attach any particular significance to one single kind of fruit.

To date there is no reliable evidence, either, that any way exists to remove cholesterol once it has been deposited.

Eat apples if you like 'em.

Dear Dr. Molner: When children's first teeth become so loose they can be pushed out with your finger, should that be done? Does taking loose teeth out make permanent ones grow in crooked? —MRS. M.L.

When a tooth is loose, remove it. It's about ready to come out anyway and the child probably will wiggle it out with the tongue, or lose it while eating.

At that stage, removal will have no effect on the second teeth. They already are pushing up behind the first ones, and whether they are crooked depends on other factors.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a two-year-old son. Is circumcision necessary? Why? If so when should it be done? —MRS. S.P.

If the foreskin can be easily retracted and the area under it kept clean, circumcision is not necessary. However, if it is taut, and especially if there are signs of irritation, circumcision is advisable. In general, circumcision is good hygiene.

It is best done right after birth. It's far easier on a baby than years later.

Alanbrooke Dead at 79

LONDON (CP)—Field Marshal Viscount Alanbrooke, British Second World War leader, died Monday at his home at Hartley Wintney, Hampshire. He was 79.

He was chief of the imperial general staff through most of the Second World War from 1941 to 1946. He was promoted to field marshal in 1944 and became a viscount in 1945.

★ ★ ★

Lord Alanbrooke commanded the 2nd Army Corps of the British Expeditionary Force in France from 1939 to 1940. After the retreat from Dunkerque he became commander in chief of home forces until his promotion to the post of chief of the imperial general staff.

Alan Francis Brooke was born at Bagneres de Bigorre, France, July 23, 1883, the son of the late Sir Victor Brooke and Lady Brooke-Colebrooke of Brookeborough, County Fermanagh.

★ ★ ★

He was twice married—first to Jane Mary Richardson in January, 1914. She died in 1925. His second marriage was to Benita, the widow of Sir Thomas Lees. By each marriage he had a son and a daughter. The daughter of the second marriage died.

He is succeeded to the title of Viscount Alanbrooke by his 46-year-old son, Thomas.

Alanbrooke, a constant companion of former prime minister Winston Churchill during the Second World War and a main architect of the allied victory, was to have taken part in a ceremony at Windsor Monday as a knight of the Garter—one of Britain's chief orders of chivalry.

At the ceremony, attended by Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, a special prayer was offered for the war-time leader.

Sugar Price Drops Again

VANCOUVER (CP) — The wholesale price of sugar dropped 30 cents here Monday to $15.25 a hundredweight.

Last Friday refiners cut their prices by 35 cents.

"The market is collecting itself after the violent changes in the last few weeks," said a spokesman for the B.C. Sugar Refining Company.

MPs Reject Debate On Budget Experts

OTTAWA (CP)—An opposition move to bring about an emergency Commons debate on the part played by three outside experts in preparation of the federal budget was beaten down Monday by the Liberal government, helped by Social Credit.

Later, taking advantage of an opening set up by a Social Credit member, Finance Minister Gordon explained how a Calgary law firm was able to receive from the minister's former Toronto firm a summarized version of changes in the budget at 9:30 the morning after it was unveiled here.

The summary was prepared by the Toronto accounting firm of Clarkson, Gordon and Company, with which Mr. Gordon used to be associated.

TELEGRAM EXPLAINS

The explanation was contained in a telegram Mr. Gordon read to the House from the senior partner in the accounting firm, J. R. M. Wilson.

The telegram stated the firm received copies of the budget from the Bank of Canada at the normal release time, resolutions were photocopied and explanatory memorandums attached, and these were then airmailed overnight to western clients.

The matter had been raised by Douglas Harkness (PC—Calgary North) who called for a full explanation in view of questions about the secrecy of the budget.

The move for a special debate on three Toronto businessmen being brought in by the government to help prepare the budget was made by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker. He was supported by T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader.

Last Friday Mr. Gordon admitted under opposition questioning that M. P. O'Connell and C. H. Stanley, Toronto investment dealers, and G. R. Conway, a post-graduate student at Harvard, had been engaged as temporary assistants in the finance department. The minister said at the time that both investment dealers remained on the payroll of their respective concerns.

Aid Groups Meet

Parley Maps Attack On World Poverty

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP)—In the first such meeting ever held, about 100 representatives from foreign-aid organizations in Canada met Monday to shape a more integrated and streamlined attack on world poverty.

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin said perhaps the time has come when "we should give consideration to a more effective method of dispensing foreign aid . . . because the amount of aid that individual countries give to those countries who need it is so insignificant in terms of need . . ."

But one of the great problems in Canada was that people generally were not convinced of the importance of foreign aid.

"Trade unions, for instance, give strong support in principle to the matter of foreign aid. But my experience has been that when you come to an actual confrontation in an election, they are among those who are most violently opposed to it."

The three-day conference is sponsored by the Canadian Welfare Council, the Canadian Committee of the International Conference of Social Work, and the Overseas Institute of Canada.

Final Papal Tribute

VATICAN CITY (CP) — The Roman Catholic Church paid solemn farewell to Pope John XXIII Monday before dignitaries of many nations, the clergy of other Christian faiths and representatives of Judaism.

Cardinals, princes and political leaders attended a requiem mass in the vaulted grandeur of St. Peter's Basilica.

Pope John's family and boyhood friends were at St. Peter's.

Strange Economy

NO politician makes the promise of bigger and better prisons a feature of his election campaign, naturally enough. Convicts don't vote. And the rest of us, most of the time, don't care.

But the summary of findings of commissions looking into Canadian penitentiary riots in the last 18 months which was tabled in the House of Commons by Justice Minister Chevrier surely is enough to shock the complacency out of most Canadians. It speaks of dirty, outmoded cells and buildings, teeming vermin, rats, roaches and bedbugs at St. Vincent de Paul near Montreal and gross overcrowding with insufficient segregation at the B.C. Penitentiary, such an overload that some prisoners are obliged to sleep in corridors.

The public desire may not extend to anything resembling luxury and pampering for wrong-doers, but in this enlightened age it is taken for granted that the aim of imprisonment is reformation when the human material makes this possible, at least as much as exemplary punishment.

Certainly it will go against the conscience of the country that to the intended penalty—being shut off from the world—governments in succession continue to countenance the addition of a sorely cramped existence in such depressing and unhealthful surroundings.

This will be for the sake of economy. It is strange economy though that puts the cost of buildings above the value of human lives, lives which can be turned again to good purpose in far greater numbers with adequate facilities.

Both from the humane standpoint and to stop the waste of taxpayers' money spent on punishing prisoners without benefit to the country where overcrowding handicaps rehabilitation, the present situation cries out to be remedied and without delay. Canada would appear to have a long way to go to bring its penitentiary system up to date to the point at which the people can be satisfied with it, let alone proud of it.

Columbia Vote

PREMIER Bennett likes to spring surprises, this is one of his characteristics, but he has caught his own Columbia supporters as flat-footed as everyone else by calling the byelection in this riding for July 15. This barely allows time for emphatic campaigning.

That the Socreds alone of all the parties have not yet named a candidate or scheduled a nomination convention may suggest a cavalier attitude or lack of close grass-roots liaison.

Mr. Strachan's contention that this mid-summer poll will help the Socreds hardly holds water however. If it comes in the midst of the holidays and tourism this is bound to affect Socred voters equally with others. Most people go on vacation in summer or are busy catering for holidaymakers, irrespective of politics.

Speculation will be rife now as to whether this is a dodge to put off the general provincial election which some feel will upset or seriously affect the Bennett administration. Time would erase a defeat in the Columbia byelection and the public has short memories.

Nevertheless the Columbia poll will be a test of the climate of existing opinion, and should indicate to some extent how far the Socred government, now 11 years in office, retains the confidence of the electorate.

More than usual interest should also attach to the Conservative bid in the Columbia poll, this time under the invigorating influence of its new party leader, Mr. Fulton. A win or a large vote would promise much for its resurgence.

Time Takes Its Toll

ON the eve of a Garter ceremony at Windsor Castle in which as a KG himself he would have taken part, the Viscount Alanbrooke has died. He would have been 80 years old next month.

Thus does time take its toll of the Allied leaders of the last war. Only last week the death was recorded of his naval colleague in the same high level of strategy, Viscount Cunningham. He was of approximately the same age.

Churchill alone of that galaxy seems to go on indefinitely.

Alanbrooke was well-known to the Canadian troops; they came under his command after Dunkirk when he commanded the home forces being deployed to prevent the expected invasion of Britain.

It was after this that he became Chief of the Imperial General Staff, a position he held until the war ended and which saw him emerge as one of the principal advisers and planners in all the major military decisions.

The great generals of history are those who lead armies in the field; this was denied Lord Alanbrooke but his eminence as the ranking soldier of the British Army and its chief War Office figure was uncontested.

He made a decided mark on the fateful progress of the 1939-45 war, and served his country and its Allies with distinction.

A Poor Show

THE Metropolitan Opera singer from Toronto who walked off the stage in Moscow in the middle of her performance did neither herself, her art nor her country much good.

One simply cannot imagine a Russian performer of any kind being so discourteous while appearing in this country.

Miss Stratas was piqued because the Bolshoi Theatre audience didn't give her any curtain calls after either the first or second acts. In Leningrad she received many curtain calls and, she says of herself, in Moscow she "was very good."

It is explained that the Bolshoi audiences are usually restrained until the performance is ended, but even so if curtain calls are customary only as an act of politeness then their worth as a tribute to artistic merit is without value.

Miss Stratas says if she had carried on in the face of a cool reception she would have had no backbone; the impression will be general this would have proved that she had backbone.

She compounded her offence—and the Russian audience presumably paid to hear her sing—by refusing to attend the Canadian embassy reception in her honor. Artists of this spoiled temperament should stay home.

"Oh, NO...!"

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax ..."

By TOM TAYLOR

AS Mr. Bennett indicated when he turned to his highways minister the other day Mr. Gaglardi was born to build roads. It is in his blood. In this realm he upholds the honor of his forebears.

Indeed, according to the premier, he surpasses them, to wit:

"When the Romans built roads, your forefathers never built them like that"—meaning the latest exhibit of highway engineering, the Creston-Salmo cutoff.

Still and all the Romans were no mean roadbuilders. Mr. Gaglardi would be the first to point to their example, which indubitably has spurred him in his own far-reaching plans.

A man never forgets his heritage, if he is worth the kind of salt we discussed herein on Sunday last.

And too, while conceding he has bulldozers and the like to shift mountains, and equipment that would make a Caesar gasp in astonishment and envy, he cannot call on slaves to labor mightily nor centurions to keep them in order.

* * *

But the Romans in truth led the way. They taught the world how to build good roads and their practices held sway until last century. And one fears that not even Mr. Gaglardi, or any of his contemporaries anywhere as far as that goes, can make his roads last like those his forebears built.

The pavement of the famous Appian Way lasted for centuries, and modern excavations have revealed some of it to be still well preserved. Of course no massive and heavily laden trucks used it day and night, nor was there ever a continuing procession of private cars to erode its surface.

It was quite a road this, nevertheless. It ran from Rome southeast to the heel of the Italian boot, some 350 miles I suppose, and miles-long stretches were as straight as a ruler. Like some of our roads perforce, it was at first graveled. The paving came later, consisting of large blocks of lava and stone, carefully fitted together and superimposed on a substructure of stones and cement.

* * *

Mr. Gaglardi will know all about this, and, perhaps, doffs a metaphorical hat to the ingenuity of his ancestors.

Incidentally the Roman Censor who supervised the first part of this job gave the highway his own name—he was Appius Claudius — which suggests that the Rogers Pass could thus with some precedent have been called the Gaglardi Pass.

The Appian Way took about 68 years to complete, a bit slower than the Trans-Canada Highway in toto, and a pace not to the liking of this sturdy descendant of these Roman roadbuilders.

It is interesting to note that in the palmiest days of their empire the Romans had a road system comprising 50,000 miles. No wonder the world came to adapt the slogan "All roads lead to Rome." British Columbia's present road system reaches roughly to half that extent, and Mr. Gaglardi himself can be credited with a quarter of it.

He has been at the highway helm only 10 years, of course.

Plutarch said of one road-building Censor: "His most special exertions were given to constructing the roads, which he was careful to make beautiful and pleasant as well as convenient . . . He caused the roads to be all divided into miles, and erected pillars of stone to signify the distance from one place to another."

Mr. Gaglardi does that too, with signs instead of pillars since all those who travel on B.C. highways can, presumably, read.

In fact a study of ancient Roman roadbuilding might induce the conclusion that he simply picks up where his forbears left off. As we have noted, roads are in his blood.

Washington Calling

Crises on Two Fronts

By MARQUIS CHILDS
from Rome

IN the unending columns in the European press devoted to America's racial crisis, the European reader can hardly escape a sense of a great nation on the verge of civil war. While this may, or may not be justified by events themselves or by the reporting of those events brought into sharp focus, those who urge this as a reason for President Kennedy to cancel his European trip overlook a crisis in another field that is at least as grave.

In his American university speech the president indicated how crucial it was to try to prevent a new series of nuclear tests by the two nuclear giants, which would step up the arms race very possibly past the point of no return. But he stopped short of disclosing the deeper nature of the crisis and the reasons for it, which are concealed by the highest secrecy label.

* * *

The United States in September of 1961 began a massive intelligence breakthrough. It is hardly an exaggeration to say that this altered the balance of power in the world or, at any rate, a new relationship in the power balance was made evident. So carefully has this secret been kept that there have been only two or three guarded references to it in the press.

In Washington recently when many of the NATO foreign ministers and the NATO ambassadors assembled after the Ottawa conference the following exchange occurred. One of the NATO ministers said to Secretary of State Dean Rusk:

"Three years ago you were talking about the missile gap and the bomber gap. You told us at the Athens meeting a year ago and now you've told us again that you know your nuclear superiority is in a very extraordinary degree. If you were wrong before how do you know that you're right this time?"

"All I can say to you," Rusk replied, "is that we know."

What has long been clear is that when one side or the other in the so-called balance of terror achieved a significant breakthrough the mercury in the crisis thermometer would shoot sharply up. Perhaps that time is not here and not as of this month or next month. But the Soviets, by starting a new series of tests to expand and develop their weapons of massive megatonnage, could signal the start of such a time.

* * *

This was the urgency in the president's speech and in the decision to try at a "high level" conference to make one more effort to reach a test-ban agreement. The chances for success cannot be considered too bright. Premier Khrushchev recently told an American visitor, Norman Cousins, of the pressure he was under from his military in view of the fact that the United States had conducted 70 per cent more tests than the Soviet Union.

Discussing the president's European trip and the difficulties he has encountered in arranging it, some of his close associates in Washington speculated several weeks ago that he might consider a direct confronation with Khrushchev on the test-ban question. This was conjecture. But it cannot be ruled out, and particularly in light of the president's warning against confronting an adversary with the choice between humiliating retreat or nuclear war.

* * *

Little more than three years ago the shooting down of a U-2 reconnaissance plane deep in the heart of Russia presented Khrushchev with a crisis that his hard-line enemies in the Communist bloc were quick to exploit. This violation of territory as revealed to the Soviet people and the world threatened war. It was averted, thanks in no small part to Khrushchev's restraint.

Last October the Soviets tried secretly to place missiles in Cuba, 90 miles from America's shores, as though they could in this way affect a known and menacing alteration in the balance of terror. The president behaved with great calm and restraint and the crisis passed. But how may times this can happen and stop just short of disaster is the question the president posed if only by implication in his American University speech.

* * *

It would be fortunate if America's house was in order so that the president could devote his full time and energy to world affairs and the threat of nuclear war. In the '30s President Roosevelt wrestled with the problems of a great depression and more or less ignored the rise of Nazism and the threat of German conquest. The inevitable march of events brought on the conflict, with America's influence used only indirectly.

The nuclear crisis involves all of America's allies. Indeed, it involves all of mankind. If the president were to put this aside pending a "solution" of the racial problem and signal his intention by cancelling his European trip he would be bound to concentrate on the single question of race so long as he was in the White House. What Harry Truman called the impossible office of the presidency makes many and conflicting demands on the man who occupies it, and particularly at a time when the bills for past errors and neglect all come due at once.

Today In History

By The Canadian Press

Napoleon was finally swept from power in Europe by the Battle of Waterloo 148 years ago today—in 1815—when the Prussian and British army routed the French army.

Napoleon had earlier defeated the Prussians under Blucher at Ligny and with the British falling back on Waterloo, Napoleon sought to dispatch his old enemy as soon as possible. But Blucher had a preconcerted plan with the British commander, Wellington, and while the British held the field, the Prussians again entered the engagement and their combined strength swept the French away.

1812—War was declared between Britain and the United States.

1953—Egypt was declared a republic.

The Packsack

Funny Sight

By GREGORY CLARK

NATURE, or heredity, or maybe greedy eating habits, have decreed that only certain girls and women can wear bikinis. In consideration of this truth, there is a wide variety of styles and patterns of bathing suits available to the fair sex.

For men, however, there is just the one style. Trunks. Fat or lean, tall or short, knock-kneed or bandy-legged, the men have no refuge from the truth. This situation has apparently been accepted everywhere by both men and women. With the greatest compassion, a dock-load of damsels will cheerfully submit to the sight of a pot-bellied gentleman of 40 waddling in their midst, and not a smirk or a raised eyebrow amongst them.

There is, however, a new area of masculine fashion in which large numbers of men are forbidden. And that is this new continental development of what we called Ivy League a few years ago. Extremely narrow trousers, cut well above the shoe tops. Short jacket, with small lapels.

There is only one shape of young man, as rare as those young women who can wear bikinis, who dares adopt this fashion. A few short, fat-bottomed young men try to get into the style. But the effect is hilarious.

On the House

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

DURING the luncheon recess of the Commons the other sunny noonday, a couple of honeymooning tourists from Montreal wandered, hand in hand, into the House, looked around, and proceeded to make themselves "at home."

He sat in Mr. Speaker's chair on the "Throne" at the head of the big, cool Green Chamber, and she took his picture. (It would look well, in years to come, in their photographic memory album, alongside other pictures they probably had shot in front of the Peace Tower, at the door of the Mint, on the broad steps of the new Supreme Court, at the brass-plated archway in to the Bank of Canada and all those other places of national note where tourists pose for family posterity.

She lowered the camera after clicking the shutter and sighed: "Wouldn't it be wonderful, dear, if you were the Speaker: I could do all that fancy Parliamentary entertaining for you?"

As they left the Chamber, they walked down a long corridor, past a row of life-sized paintings of all the Commons Speakers down through the years, almost any one of whom, in his day, might have been happy to tell the new bride that this kind of entertaining is entertainment for everybody except the host and the hostess.

* * *

With Speakers, take it from a couple of old hands who had the course, the job itself isn't so terribly tough, but the moonlighting's murder.

You draw an annual $4,000 to feed and fete the Parliamentary flock, visiting VIPs, the denizens of Diplomatic Row, and, as it always turns out, a hard and unshakeable core of free-wheeling free-loaders.

You give two black tie dinners for the governor-general and a pair for the prime minister each session of Parliament, which covers for as many as 50 each time, and at $10 per plate—you entertain with no charge for overhead, rent, taxes, or even service, and the food comes wholesale at Parliamentary Restaurant bargain prices—your $4,000 is dropped to $2,000.

You shoot the social works for the opening of each session, and with invitations—and without—as many as 1,500 can come to nibble and nip.

Even some of the tourists get into the social act, happy to join the festivities, probably figuring the hospitality as something of an unexpected but not unwelcome rebate (or if they're Social Credit, dividend) on their income tax.

Freshman Speaker Alan Macnaughton, setting up the canapes and cocktails for his first time this session must have been surprised and probably delighted to find some of the Rotary Club's young collegiate "Adventurers in Citizenship" among his guests. Visiting the capital from many points across the country, they just wandered in to see what all the cluck and clatter was about.

Then there is the big bash, the End-of-Session Get-Away-Day hoedown, when all of Parliament Hill drops in early and stays late.

And here it should be recorded that one of the recent Speakers—who, obviously, remain anonymous for the sake of peace on the parliamentary family—once kept count, and established beyond all morning-after shadow of doubt that man for man and bottle for bottle, the Press Gallery of the Commons holds the capital's championship capacity.

* * *

Rene Beaudoin of "Pipeline" fame was THE host among Speakers of the last 20 years, taking over the Parliamentary Restaurant, lock, stock, refrigerator and wine cabinet to put over Get-Away-Day, the regular End-of-Session dust-up in true baronial style . . . and for good social measure, throwing in a Springtime Mardi Gras frolic with a swinging Roaring Twenties-type band, and the late great Agriculture Minister James G. (Jumping Jimmy) Gardiner dancing the hornpipe as an extra added attraction.

But there are only the regular and routine, traditionally "duty" occasions of hospitality for Mr. Speaker, and at some of them he becomes accustomed to seeing a certain select circle of charmingly sociable gate-crashers whom he suspects of supplementing their grocery and beverage budget at his buffet and bar.

What are you going to do with them, cause a scene and have them heaved out into the cool of the evening?

Hardly dignified, so Mr. Speaker, like other such hosts, in resignation before the inevitably unavoidable, submits to the remarkable intrusions of the free-loaders.

It is one of the phenomena of the social scene in the parliamentary - diplomatic - governmental circles of the capital . . . this astonishing dexterity of the well-dressed, well-mannered gate-crashers in getting around from one clambake to another, from the starting 5 o'clock cocktail hour to the midnight curfew of the drink-up-lates, six evenings a week, month in and year out.

With more than 50 diplomatic missions in town all serving from tax-free bars, and the military brass and political who's who dispensing subsidized hospitality, any enterprising interloper with a clean shirt, a fresh pressing and a reasonably literate accent, need scarcely ever have to buy himself a drink, dinner or midnight snack.

But, of all the people who set-'em-up in this capital, Mr. Speaker, as the official host of Parliament, is probably the busiest. For he gets mousetrapped by the external affairs department in entertaining for every visiting VIP which, in turn, puts him aboard the perpetual motion social merry-go-round operating on Diplomatic Row. To handle his moonlighting, a Speaker must have an extremely high voltage metabolism, or he'll end up beat, beefy, a bit bleary-eyed and broke.

Selling

Missed Chances

By DAVID GRENIER

A FEW years ago, Fortune magazine ran an article on auto salesmen that shattered the image of a brash, breezy, extroverted breed.

Far from it, Fortune concluded. Its own findings were that auto salesmen were withdrawn, introspective characters, more concerned with inspecting their fingernails than drumming up sales prospects.

At the time the article was published, it exposed a raw nerve. The industry had moved from a seller's to a buyer's market. In many respects, it had failed to adapt to changing times. For a competitive industry, it was too prone to tell the customer what was good for him instead of trying to find out what he really wanted.

Once it had accepted the principle that the customer is always right, its thinking began to clear. Suddenly things began to piece together. The marketplace once more became a centre not of obstacles but of sales opportunities.

Sometimes, though, you can't help wondering how well opportunities are understood, let alone exploited. For instance, even today, with every auto company bending over backwards to please the customer with greater variety of models, longer warranties and the like, how often is any real attempt made to actually sell someone a car — as distinct from letting him buy one?

* * *

Or take another example. Up to quite recently, the price of sugar has gone on climbing, every housewife has become conscious of the seemingly never-ending upward spiral.

One would have thought that at such a time, an intensive campaign to sell people on sugar substitutes—like saccharin—would have been logical. But how often has anyone tried to stress not only the price but dietary advantages of artificial sweeteners?

The best example of all perhaps is in the beverage field.

The price of a cup of coffee has recently gone up in many restaurants. Some are brewing a high grade coffee, and selling it at 15 cents a cup. Others have hiked the price on take-out service.

What more natural at such a time than to drive home the fact that the price of a cup of tea still is 10 cents? Again, though, the tea companies have either been slow in rising to the challenge or — subconsciously—they believe there's no hope of wooing people away from their cup of coffee.

If that is actually the case, it's sheer defeatism. In North America, coffee is relatively a newcomer; up to the second half of the last century, tea was the favored beverage.

Who knows if tastes can't be made to change again? It's not impossible. But unless the public is sold on a change, it will remain another opportunity missed.

"Tell that kid to be quiet or he'll be sent to bed without any promises."

Hearing Smooth —Nobody There

A public hearing last night on a bylaw to change the zoning of Oak Bay's two golf courses went off very smoothly.

None of the public was present.

As Oak Bay council members filed in, Coun. Fred Robinson looked across the empty council chamber at three reporters and asked:

"Are you fellows here to protest?"

Reeve George Murdoch called the hearing to order and asked if there were any letters of protest.

"No letters but the (favorable) one from the secretaries of the two golf clubs," said municipal clerk E. H. Hart.

"Well, I move that the hearing adjourn," said Coun. Allan Cox.

The proposed rezoning would change the zoning of the Uplands and Victoria Golf Clubs from residential to golf club use and has been favorably received by the clubs. The change is intended to give the clubs some security against tax increases.

Oak Bay Slowdown

Bump on Purpose

A bump will be placed across Estevan Avenue near the Esplanade to force speeding cars to slow down, Oak Bay council decided last night.

Coun. Alex Hendry, head of council's traffic and transportation committee which recommended the semi-cylindrical bump across the road, said it will be on an experimental basis. The move follows a request from residents of the area for such a bump.

Reeve George Murdoch said, "you are just going to have smart-alec kids trying to see how fast they can hit it without going out of control."

Coun. Fred Robinson suggested that stop signs be installed at Estevan and the Esplanade, or that the section of Estevan involved be made a one-way street.

Council endorsed a resolution from North Vancouver asking the B.C. health minister to "ameliorate and correct" the "undue tax load which is placed on municipalities in metropolitan areas" in B.C. to support metro health boards.

The resolution said municipalities in metropolitan areas must pay most of the cost of local health services while those in non-metropolitan areas must pay a municipal share of only 30 cents a person.

Coun. Allan Cox, said Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt, as members of the Greater Victoria Metro Health Board, must pay much more a person for health services than Saanich, a member of the Saanich and South Vancouver Island Health Board, a non-metropolitan board.

School Broadcast Wins Ohio Prize

B.C. school radio broadcasts, under the direction of Margaret M. Musselman, have won another international award, Education Minister Leslie Peterson said yesterday.

The particular program submitted as a sample was entitled Thar She Blows, and was written by W. G. Crisp.

The category in which the award was made was for arts and humanities, at the 27th American Exhibition of Educational Radio Programs at Ohio State University.

Frederick Knight, superintendent of Victoria Machinery Depot's No. 1 yard on Bay Street, died suddenly Sunday at his home, 1908 Beach Drive.

Mr. Knight was born in Cheshire, England, 71 years ago and moved to South Africa with his family as a boy.

His father was general manager for the contracting firm of Sir John Jackson Ltd., builders of the Simons Bay naval base and drydock, 35 miles from Capetown.

HERE IN 1913

Mr. Knight served his engineering apprenticeship at the dockyard and came to Victoria with the Jackson company in 1913 as mechanical engineer on the building of the Ogden Point breakwater.

He later became superintendent of the Point Hope hull yard and its outfitting plant at Ogden Point, both operated by the Foundation Company of B.C. There he took a leading role in the building of five wooden-hulled ships for the Imperial Munitions Board and 20 similar vessels for the French government.

WITH LOGGING FIRM

From 1924 to 1928 he was master mechanic with Comox Logging Company in Courtenay.

In 1928 he went to Singapore as chief mechanical engineer on the construction of the naval base, assuming the position of works manager from 1936 to 1938.

He remained in the Far East until 1941 as resident engineer for the Singapore water department. During this time he supervised the building of a new reservoir and a pipeline running from Johore Baru in Malaya to Singapore.

Returning to Canada in 1941, Mr. Knight was manager of Williams Machinery Co., Ottawa, at the same time serving as progress engineer with the shipbuilding branch of the munitions board.

He joined VMD in 1950 and was there until his death. He was at work Friday. He was a member of the Institute of Mechanical Engineers, the Victoria Golf Club and the Union Club.

RITES WEDNESDAY

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 10:15 a.m. in McCall Bros. Floral Chapel, Johnson and Vancouver.

Park Bench in Hood of Car Costs City Motorist $350

A motorist who was found with a concrete and wood park bench sticking out of the hood of his car was charged with impaired driving and fined $350 in city magistrate's court yesterday.

Court was told the investigating officer asked how long the bench had been there. The accused replied "two weeks."

Stefan Gowin, 163 Wellington, pleaded guilty to the charge.

The court was told Gowin was spotted driving along Dallas Road with the bench sticking out of his car hood. Investigating constables found scrape marks where the bench had been dragging on the road for nearly two miles. The bench had been torn from the promenade at Dallas and Pilot Street.

★ ★ ★

Theodore McMaster and Norman McKay, both of HMCS Jonquiere, were fined $100 each when they pleaded guilty to a charge of taking a car without the owner's consent.

★ ★ ★

A charge of careless driving was queried by crown prosecutor T. P. O'Grady when circumstances against Pasquale Liberatori, 1116 Caledonia, were read to the court.

Speeds of close to 50 miles an hour were reached during the chase which extended for some distance before the accused was finally pulled over by a police car using a flashing light and siren.

During the course of the chase the motorist went through a red light and stop signs.

"It appears to be more like a case of dangerous driving to me, your honor," said prosecutor O'Grday. Magistrate William Ostler fined Liberatori $175.

★ ★ ★

A motorist "who set extraordinary forces in motion" in an accident at Blanshard near Memorial Arena June 8 was fined $40 when he pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving.

Court was told the car of Gordon H. Dunaway, 1039 Sutlej, hit another car which in turn piled into three more cars a l a motorcycle before coming to rest.

Both crown counsel O'Grady and Magistrate Ostler inquired into the speed of the second car, which was not mentioned on available information.

"It appears the accused is merely the one who set these extraordinary forces in motion," said the prosecutor.

★ ★ ★

A case of mistaken identity which led to a charge of assault cost Walter Swain, Work Point Barracks, $100.

At an earlier court session, city Const. K. W. Knight testified he heard a cry for help while patrolling the 700 block Cormorant and found the accused punching a man.

"It's perfectly obvious you took this man for someone else. Someone for whom you have a real or imaginary grudge. Your record shows you are a good soldier," said Magistrate William Ostler.

★ ★ ★

Errol Tucker, who was charged with entering a dwelling house with intent to commit an indictable offence, was remanded until court session today to permit a psychiatrist to be called in.

Dr. D. E. Alcorn is due to appear in court today to discuss the accused's condition.

★ ★ ★

Robert McCutcheon, an employee of Midland Superior Express Ltd., admitted stealing $831 from the company between Jan. 1 and June 11 of this year and was remanded until June 25 for a probation report and sentence.

The court was told full restitution had been made to McCutchon's employers.

★ ★ ★

Lawrence Higgs, 2523 Asquith, who was caught siphoning gas from a car, pleaded guilty and was remanded until July 2 for a probation report and sentence.

★ ★ ★

A woman charged with two counts of theft under $50 had one charge dropped and was found not guilty of the second charge in Esquimalt magistrate's court.

Dorothy Irene Hart, 766 Kings, was jointly charged with William Wesley Walters, who had already admitted the thefts and has been sentenced.

He appeared as a witness for Mrs. Hart yesterday and testified she knew nothing of the thefts from Marshall-Wells Hardware in Esquimalt Shopping Centre, and Steick's Hardware, Esquimalt Road.

A jig saw, steam iron and electric drill were stolen.

Police found what were believed to have been the same items in Mrs. Hart's car.

Magistrate Ostler said it was extraordinary the accused did not see the items when they were put in her car. "It is possible, albeit unlikely."

He ruled there was reasonable doubt and that doubt had to be resolved in favor of the accused.

Forest Industry Alarmed

Budget Shocks B.C. Business

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

It is not exaggerating to say that the Gordon budget has been received with shock and consternation by industry and business in British Columbia.

When I arrived back on the coast last weekend, I found that the imposition of the 11 per cent Federal sales tax on machinery (outside of agriculture and fishing) and on building products was creating alarm throughout the province, and particularly in the forest industry.

MILL COST TO SOAR

In Vancouver, Peter Bentley, director of Canadian Forest Products said his firm calculated that the budget changes would add $4,500,000 to the cost of building the $50,000,000 pulp and paper mill which his firm, in conjunction with the Reed Paper Company of Britain, is proposing to build at Prince George.

The extra cost would be incurred in federal sales tax on plant and machinery.

PLANS ACCEPTED, BUT

Mr. Bentley added there was no suggestion as yet that the change would affect the plans, but that the extra costs would have to be considered very carefully by the interested parties.

Most other leading forest industry firms with buildings in the construction or planning stage are also perturbed.

"There is little doubt that B.C. is the province which will be most severely hit by the new budget," said one Vancouver businessman.

FOUR PER CENT RISE

In Victoria the new taxation will be felt most by the plywood and lumber manufacturers and by the do-it-yourself experts.

One building man said the taxes were likely to add about four per cent to the cost of building an average home.

LUMBER GOING UP

The retail price of plywood and lumber will rise by more than the 11 per cent federal sales tax, because that is applied at the manufacturing level.

Distributors and retailers will take a higher mark-up and the provincial sales tax of 5 per cent will thus be automatically higher.

"The price of plywood could go up 20 per cent at the retail level" said one lumber yard.

LEVEL-OUT BID

The government, however, has attempted to level out the cost of new housing by giving a bonus of $500 for each new housing unit constructed during the winter of 1963-64.

This bonus is to encourage employment in the construction industry at a period when building is normally slack.

The local view is that the lure of the $500 will slacken the pace of home construction in the next few months. It is pointed out that home construction in the Victoria area is not greatly affected by winter weather, except for rain and mud inconvenience.

DEALERS WORRIED TOO

Also seriously worried about the new budget provision are members of the investment industry.

The proposal that sales of Canadian equities of $50,000 and over to U.S. residents are to be taxed by 30 per cent has created doubts as to who is to be responsible.

One local broker pointed out that in many cases sales of shares amounting to over $50,000 are made frequently without the names of the principals in the transaction being revealed.

REVISE TRADING RULES

"If the seller is to be responsible "then many of the ground rules for trading will have to be revised."

One issue which is likely to be put on ice until the situation is further clarified is the promised issue of 1,500,000 convertible preferred $25 per shares of Aluminium Ltd.

More than half Aluminium common shares are held in the U.S. and it must be considered doubtful if this $60,000,000 new offering would be feasible without U.S. participation.

Stock Prices Move Lower

Stock prices weakened throughout the day and closed at their lows in moderately active trading.

Base metals, banks, oils and tobaccos were weak at Toronto and Montreal, where the main interest was in speculative mining issues. Cusco and TriBag were responsible for a third of the Toronto trading volume of 5,505,000.

Rails were stronger at New York following government intervention to block an early strike, but the trend was mainly lower. Chemicals and electronics were weak.

London stock prices were strong with industrials leading the upward way.

Canadian bonds showed fractional losses.

Garden Notes

Keep Tree to Scale

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

If your front garden is on the small side, you'd better be just a little bit cagey when it comes to choosing an ornamental tree for the plot. A harmless-looking specimen from the nursery may turn into a cuckoo in the nest within a few years, blotting out the light, masking the view from the house windows and robbing the soil of food and water to such an extent that even the lawn won't grow.

* * *

Fortunately, there are trees well suited to the small front garden—trees which will remain a reasonable size without a lot of annual pruning and which will bring beauty to the garden without wanting the whole plot to themselves. Some of these small trees are particularly charming and decorative, making up in grace and delicacy and intimate appeal what they may lack in majesty.

Some of our best small trees are to be found among the maples, and probably the finest for our purpose are the varied forms of the Japanese maple, Acer palmatum. There is a purple-leafed form, and another with green leaves pencilled with a narrow edging of rose pink called Roseamarginatum. Still another, Osakazuki, turns a flaming scarlet in the fall before it sheds its leaves.

All of these are relatively slow growers, making a height eventually of about 10 feet, and the roots are not in the least invasive or greedy.

Another maple, Acer japonicum, is a little bigger, growing to 15 feet. The leaflets are usually more numerous than those of Palmatum, but in this branch of the maple family it is possible to get a tree with bright golden foliage—the variety Aureum. It is available also with dark purple leaves.

* * *

The Box Elder, Acer negrundo, is also a maple, but far too vigorous for our small gardens. There are two variegated forms, however, which are not only much smaller and neater than the native Box Elder, but have much more interesting foliage. Acer negrundo variegata has green and white leaves, while A.n. aureomarginatum has fresh green leaves edged in golden yellow.

Acer griseum, still another dwarf maple, is a wonderfully neat and tidy tree for planting in a small lawn. The leaves die slowly and gloriously in the autumn, lighting up the landscape with their brilliant fall colors, but the show doesn't end with leaf-fall, for the peeling colored bark is one of the delights of the winter garden.

Getting away from the maples, the Stag's Horn Sumach, Rhus typhina, is a most attractive little tree with leaves rather like an ash, but turning a glorious scarlet in the fall. The best one to buy is the variety Laciniata, with lacy, deeply cut foliage, producing a ferny, tropical effect. If the Sumach has any fault, it is that the hairy stems and branches stain the clothing rather badly if you brush up against it.

* * *

I think my own favorites among the small trees are the flowering crabapples—the ornamental kind, grown for their blossom and foliage effect rather than for fruit. Malus purpurea and its varieties aldenhamensis and lemoinei have purple-tinted leaves that deepen in color with the onset of autumn, and there is Malus yunnanensis which dies royally in scarlet and gold, leaving a vast number of tiny scarlet fruits which keep the birds occupied well into the winter.

Innocent Word Trips ART BUCHWALD

Shocking State of Affairs

It seems unfair to us that the British press should have all the fun. In one month they had both the Duchess of Argyll scandal and the Profumo-Christine Keeler fireworks.

One of the most interesting things to come out of the Profumo business is the use of the word "affair." According to all the newspapers, Mr. Profumo admitted he had an "affair" with Miss Keeler despite denying it in Parliament.

Miss Keeler is said to have had an "affair" with a Russian naval attache as well as quite a few other people. Dr. Stephen Ward was arrested and charged with living off the earnings of girls who had "affairs" with some of Great Britain's leading citizens.

* * *

In all cases the word affair seems to take on a new meaning and one has to be careful how one uses it these days.

We only became aware of it the other day when we said to our wife, "I'm going to an affair at the Shoreham Hotel tonight."

She immediately started to cry.

"Now what did I do?"

"After all these years," she said.

"But it's for the Animal Protective Society."

"I don't care what her name is," she sobbed.

* * *

"Would you like to come?" we asked her.

"You're rubbing salt into the wound," she cried. "Go ahead and have your affair, but don't make me a part of it."

Then it dawned on us that it was very dangerous to use the word affair in the house as it would be misunderstood.

We forgot about it until a few days later when we said to our wife, "I have to go to New York."

"What for?" she wanted to know.

"To straighten out some affairs."

Immediately the tears started rolling down her cheeks.

* * *

"I didn't know you had more than one," she said.

"Not that kind of affair. I've got some business affairs to straighten out in New York."

"Christine Keeler had business affairs, too," she complained.

"I wish every time I used the word affair you wouldn't become so sensitive. Just because one goes to an affair or one straightens out an affair doesn't mean one is having an affair."

"After a war minister lies to the House of Commons, how can any of us ever be sure?"

* * *

"Now you're being ridiculous. Look, the Minows are having an affair on Saturday night."

"With whom?" she wanted to know.

"With each other; it's a cocktail party."

"That's where most affairs start," she said.

"Will you please stop being so sensitive. There is nothing wrong with using the word affair. Now forget it."

She said she'd try and we must say she's been making a great effort. Just the other day we said to her, "I see where Elizabeth Taylor is having an affair with Richard Burton."

Without batting an eye, she said, "That's very interesting. I wonder who's doing the catering?"

'Engaged' Lovers To Star Together

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—They can't make up their minds whether the title should be A Man and A Woman or A Boy and a Girl. But they are sure the film will star Romy Schneider and her long-time fiance, Alain Delon. This will be the first film for the lovers since Christine five years ago—when they became what they choose to call "engaged."

* * *

Jane Collins and new husband Anthony Newley gave their first party t'other eve—as man and wife, that is. Everyone was there from Beatrice Lillie to Red Buttons.

* * *

Joe Levine, famed for big parties and showmanship in selling his pictures, promises, "I'm going to give my Three-Penny Opera a kickoff like no picture ever had. It has sex, it has music, it has gaiety, it has violence, it's great."

* * *

Richard Harris turned down a large sum of Hollywood dollars to star in This Sporting Life, which won him the best actor award at Cannes. Richard, who was so broke as an adolescent that he once slept in a coal cellar, is now talked of as the most promising of all the promising British actors. About the big salaries, he says, "Everybody likes to make money, but if it becomes the primary object, you've had it, body and soul."

Famous Crimes Never Happened

By RUDOLPH FLESCH

Some of history's most famous crimes never happened but were made up out of whole cloth by highly imaginative teen-age girls.

A new collection of true-crime stories by the late Edmund Pearson, Masterpieces of Murder (Little, Brown), tells about three of these cases.

First, we have the disappearance of Elizabeth Canning, which happened in 18th-century London.

* * *

Elizabeth Canning, 18 years old, was walking home on New Year's Day, 1753. She disappeared and didn't turn up until four weeks later — dirty, bruised and clad in old rags.

Her story was that she'd been kidnapped by two men and kept for four weeks in the attic room of a certain house. She said she'd lived all that time on water and a little stale bread. Then she'd miraculously escaped.

You'd think that no sane person would pay any attention to such a wild tale. But no—the case became one of the most celebrated crimes in England; half the population believed every word Elizabeth Canning said, and a certain Mary Squires was sentenced to death and almost hanged on the basis of Elizabeth's testimony.

* * *

The second of Pearson's "girl liar" cases is that of Mary Elizabeth Smith, 19, who in 1846 sued a young nobleman, Earl Ferrers, for £20,000 because he'd broken his promise to marry her. She had scores of letters he'd written her; she had bought a trousseau; her parents had made full preparation for the wedding.

When the case came to court, the whole thing was proved to be a complete hoax; she had never even met the young man, had fabricated the whole tale and had written all those letters herself.

Pearson's third case is that of 16-year-old Marie Morell, a French girl who in 1834 accused a young officer, M. de la Ronciere, of breaking into her room and attacking her. She, too, had lots of letters, presumably written by M. de la Ronciere, and containing the most damning evidence against him. She, too, carried the thing all the way through to a court trial that made a national sensation.

Marie Morell was even more successful than either Elizabeth Canning or Mary Elizabeth Smith. Poor de la Ronciere was sentenced to 10 years in prison, and served eight. (Later, his case was reinvestigated and he was cleared.)

* * *

"A few years after the trial," Pearson writes, "Marie married a Marquis, and lived in sanctity: a good mother, and a gracious and bountiful lady. I wonder if she was ever troubled by thoughts of M. de la Ronciere. Her patient malice is hard to explain or excuse altogether on the ground of abnormality, and, however shocking to psychologists the suggestion may be, it is conceivable that at the very beginning, the devils could have been cast out by three sound spankings."

Wolverhampton Struggles to 2-1 Win Over Stars

GOALIE BARRY SADLER OF VICTORIA BATS AWAY DRIVE BY WOLVERHAMPTON

Soccer Thrills 3,000

By JIM TAYLOR

The Wolves of Wolverhampton were turned loose on Victoria all-stars last night—and almost bit off more than they could chew.

With a crowd of 3,000 solidly and uproariously behind them, the pick of city soccer fought touring Wolverhampton to a standstill for 70 minutes of high-speed, high-tension soccer, then bowed, 2-1, in their exhibition match at Royal Athletic Park.

Granted that Wolverhampton kept regulars Chris Crowe and Jimmy Murray on the bench in the first half. Granted the Wolves used their No. 2 goalkeeper, and had high-scoring forward Ted Farmer injured and unavailable.

COME CLOSE

But on this night the all-stars met first division soccer with first division soccer. A draw would have been a more fitting score, and they came close to getting it—much too close for the comfort of Stan Cullis, the bellicose boss of the touring side.

Cullis, still fuming about that 2-2 draw against Bangu of Brazil Saturday in Vancouver, paid all-stars the tribute of sending in his troops for the second half, and it was Murray who beat them on a cute play with John Kirkham with 24 minutes gone.

NO CHANCES

From there Wolves took no chances of sullying a tour record whose only blemish is the draw against Bangu. They played it cool and careful, more than content with a one-goal edge against a side they probably underestimated.

Wally Milligan's all-star club—Victoria United augmented by members of the district league—had one of those nights when almost everyone was at the top of his game. And on top of the lot were Barry Sadler and Dave Stothard.

SADLER GREAT

Sadler dived for loose balls, leaped to tap aside high and whistling drives, and saved half a dozen apparently sure goals. Seconds after Murray's winning goal he had another shot, point blank, and threw his arms in the air in triumph—only to see Sadler get to where he couldn't possibly be for the save.

As for Stothard, he merely added to his credentials as Canada's top fullback. He was the anchor of a stout defence, and he got ample support from fullback Len Anderson and George Wright and Pat Mulcahy on the half line.

Wolverhampton, driven on by the sparkling Peter Broadbent at inside forward, came out shooting, and cannoned shot after shot at Sadler in the opening minutes. With three minutes gone, centre-forward Barry Stobart took a Broadbent pass, stepped nimbly past Ash Waldal, and left-footed a drive into the top corner.

Wolves were on their way, but they were stopped short five minutes later when all-stars' Bill Hamilton made the play of the night.

George Paul, who played his best game of the year, bulled past Broadbent and whistled a pass across the goalmouth. Hamilton, back to the net, threw himself headlong, twisted, and headed the ball inches off the ground into the net.

That was to be all the scoring until Murray's winner, but there were chances galore, and more for the losers than for Wolves.

Henry Vanderhorst, a busy and useful man on the wing, hit a post with Finlayson beaten; Bill Abbott had two good chances on the other wing before the first half ended; Hamilton headed a ball over the open net early in the second half, and Vanderhorst was just wide twice.

And then, the most heart-breaking of all for all-stars—Stothard on a cross from Chummy Crabbe, barging up the middle for a long, low drive that grazed the post on the outside at 32 minutes with the shot that would have tied the score.

OVER CROSSBAR

Murray could have put it away for Wolves with eight minutes left when Stobart was pulled down in the penalty area by Anderson. But he put the penalty shot clear over the crossbar.

It was just as well. A draw would have been justified, and a one-goal edge wasn't far off. Any wider spread, on this night at least, would have been rank injustice.

Wolverhampton Wanderers — Malcolm Finlayson; George Showell, John Harris; Fred Goodwin, Dave Woodfield, Ken Knighton; Terry Wharton, John Kirkham, Barry Stobart, Peter Broadbent, Gerry Harris. Reserves—Chris Crowe, Jimmy Murray, Fred Knowles, John Galley.

Cardinals Wheel Into First Place; Cleveland Coming Up With Rush

By The Associated Press

Ernie Broglio's five-hit pitching and a 15-hit attack gave St. Louis an 8-1 triumph over New York Mets Monday night and sent the Cardinals into the National League lead by one-half game over Los Angeles.

The Dodgers dropped San Francisco from first to third place by beating the Giants 2-0 with the four-hit pitching of Sandy Koufax and Moose Skowron's decisive two-run double off Billy O'Dell in the third inning. The shutout was Koufax' sixth and gave him a 10-3 record.

In other NL games, consecutive home runs by Roy Sievers and Don Demeter powered Philadelphia to a 4-2 triumph over Cincinnati and Willie Stargell hit two homers and drove in six runs in Pittsburgh's 9-3 belting of Milwaukee. Houston and Chicago were not scheduled.

Broglio, 8-2, was touched only for an unearned run—the first run the Mets have scored against him in three games. Bill White homered for the Cards while Ken Boyer and Curt Flood collected three hits each.

Baltimore Orioles, shaken after a disastrous weekend that saw them drop to fifth place in the American League, finally got squared away yesterday.

Mike McCormick tossed a six-hitter for a 7-2 victory over Boston Red Sox, who had clobbered them, 8-1, and 12-5, Sunday. McCormick was the first pitcher on the potent Oriole staff to go the distance in the past 23 games, and he hit the second home run of his major league career for good measure.

It was only the fourth victory in the last 18 games for Baltimore, now three games behind the front-running New York Yankees and Chicago White Sox.

Cleveland Indians scored their only run on a balk by Jim Duckworth of Washington to win 1-0 and post their 15th victory in their last 17 games.

Sunday was the busiest day of the season in the major leagues, with 10 doubleheaders causing quite a shuffling in the standings.

Yanks completed a four-game sweep over Detroit Tigers, winning 4-0 and 6-3 behind Ralph Terry and Bill Stafford, but they couldn't shake the Sox, who stayed a mere nine percentage points behind by taking Kansas City, 2-1 and 3-2.

TWINS SKID

Meanwhile Cleveland's hot Indians took two from Washington, 4-2 and 6-3, and Minnesota Twins dropped back to sixth, losing twice to Los Angeles Angels, 5-3 and 5-4.

In Sunday's National League Action, Cincinnati Reds were the only club to gain any ground, beating New York Mets, 11-5 and 10-3 while other clubs split doubleheaders.

Highlight of the day was a 2-0 victory over Chicago Cubs by 22-year-old lefthander Nick Willhite in his debut for the Dodgers.

AT THE 19th

With Harry Young

Alarmed by the time-consuming tactics which are creeping into the game, the B.C. Golf Association is taking positive steps to combat slow play in the B.C. Amateur championship at Richmond next month.

Provincial directors at their monthly meeting in Vancouver last week drew up a list of instructions which will be distributed to all players in the provincial championship.

The executive says that it is incumbent upon the competitive golfer to exhibit the same high regard for conduct and etiquette on the course as he does for skill at play.

Provisions of Rule 37 (7) of the laws of golf state that players shall at all times play without undue delay. Between the completion of a hole and driving off the next tee, a player may not delay play in any way. The penalty in medal play is two strokes and loss of hole in match play. For repeated offence the player may be disqualified.

Amplifying this rule, the B.C. Golf Association has laid down certain local rules which will be strictly enforced by the starter or authorized tournament officials.

Each threesome in medal play will be timed when it leaves the first tee, reaches the turn and leaves the 18th green. If any threesome takes more than two hours to play either nine holes, all players in that three some may be penalized, if the starter sees fit.

Competitors also may be penalized for failing to keep their position on the course. If delays are created by one or more persons, then the penalties may be imposed on that individual or individuals, as the starter deems equitable.

It is hoped that the timing and the stationing of officials at strategic points on the course will do much to speed up play in the competition.

The BCGA says "The aim is merely to guarantee that players will move briskly between shots and will do all planning and preparation for each shot before the time comes to play it."

George Bigelow won medal honors in the Victoria Golf Club championship qualifying round Saturday shooting one over par 70. One stroke behind was Bill McColl, who lost his chance by three-putting the 17th green. Third place went to junior Jay Wilson with 75.

* * *

Just back from a golfing holiday in the interior, where I had a couple of rounds over the new 18-hole course at Kelowna.

Designed by Victoria's own golf architect, Vernon Macan, the Kelowna course has set a new standard for the B.C. interior. With four holes of over 500 yards, it is not only a good test for the long hitter, but because of its strategically placed trees and hazards puts a premium on accuracy as well.

The greens, though new are good. Once a new short eighth hole is completed and a number of new traps installed the course will rank as one of Macan's best.

Kelowna wants to host the 1964 provincial amateur championship, and it is certainly well equipped to do so. It is also a factor in their favor that this championship has never been played outside the Vancouver-Victoria areas.

* * *

We also played at Jasper where Ron MacLeod is preparing for another big season. Both Jasper and Banff courses are now within fairly easy reach of the B.C. coast through the opening of the Rogers Pass route, and both MacLeod and Malcolm Tapp, the Banff pro, say they are seeing more B.C. golfers than they have ever done in the past.

Players who took part in last year's Cowichan Open tournament at Duncan have been mailed entry forms for this year's event July 1, over 36 holes.

They must return these entries to the club by June 20 if they wish to compete. Entry is limited to 60, and the club has a waiting list of players to fill vacancies.

Vital match in the Inter-Club League will be played at Uplands Wednesday evening when Uplands meet Gorge Vale in the fifth of the series of six round robin matches.

Uplands leads the league by one point from Gorge Vale, and both Victoria, the holders, and Colwood who meet at Oak Bay, appear too far behind to rank as contenders.

Uplands with home advantage appear to have a sound chance of going further ahead and opening the way for a first victory in this competition.

Big match of the evening will be between Bill Wakeham who leads off for Gorge and his young rival Gary Smith. In the match at Gorge Vale three weeks ago the pair finished all square after an exciting contest.

The matches, with their starting times:

Lucky 13 For Arnie

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Arnold Palmer checked into the country club Monday for the 63rd national open golf championship and immediately drew locker No. N-13.

"Good," he said, with a broad grin. "Maybe it's an omen—this is my lucky number."

Palmer said "every year I've won at the Masters (1958, 1960, 1962) I've had No. 13. It's customary for the man who wins to get No. 1 the next year. Each time I've worn No. 1, I've lost."

Palmer won the $25,000 first prize in the Thunderbird golf classic Sunday at Harrison, N.Y., in a sudden death playoff with Paul Harney. He will be the one everybody will be watching this weekend when 150 of the world's greatest golfers go after the most prized championship in golf. Until Monday, Palmer had never seen the 6,870 - yard, par 71 course.

MEANS LOT

This tournament means a lot to me," Palmer said. "A lot of people already had written my golf obituary. . . . I'd like to show them."

Palmer, the game's record money - winner, last won the Open in 1960. He was beaten in a playoff for the title at Oakmont last year by Jack Nicklaus, a pressing rival for world golf honors.

Both finished the 72 holes tied at 277 after a wild series of errors.

FINAL 72

Nicklaus, the reigning Open and Masters champion, and biggest threat to Palmer's recognized No. 1 position in golf, shot a final 72 for a 284. The other member of the big three, South Africa's Gary Player, fired a brilliant closing 67 for 280.

Two immortals of another era — Ben Hogan, four-time Open champion, and Sam Snead, winner of more than 100 tournaments — finished creditably but well back. Hogan had a final 70 for 285, and Snead a 75 for 286.

Palmer, in front from the start of the tournament, faltered with a 72, two over par for the 6,550 - yard Westchester Country Club course, on the final round.

Harney, a 33-year-old pro who has been off the tour since the Masters in April, had a final 69.

Defending champion Gene Littler made an early charge at the leaders with four consecutive birdies on the front side Sunday but couldn't hold the pace and finished with 67 for 278, one stroke back of Palmer and Harney.

Bill Collins, a 10-year veteran of the tour, also collared Palmer during the final round but finished with 69 for 279. He was tied at that spot with Dow Finsterwald, former PGA champion, who also had a final 69.

Wins Amateur Title

Wakeham Sweeps City Golf Events

Bill Wakeham completed a clean sweep of local golf by winning the city amateur title for the first time Sunday. Now he's concentrating on bigger and better things.

The 22-year-old star from Gorge Vale shot a closing one-under-par 71 on his home course to take the city title by six strokes with a record 54-hole total of 213. Best total in the history of the event prior to Wakeham's assault was a one-over-par at Uplands in 1960 by Laurie Kerr, defending champion who finished 15 strokes back this year.

Wakeham won the Vancouver Island match play title and shared Centennial Foursomes crown with Al MacLeod. The city tournament win gives him all major local titles.

NEXT TEST

Next big test is defence of his B.C. amateur championship July 8 at Richmond. From there it's a spot on the provincial Willingdon Cup team — a spot he seemingly cannot miss getting.

Just to make Sunday's triumph complete, Wakeham also took the handicap competition, playing to a two-stroke handicap for a net 207, one stroke ahead of Colwood junior Denny Soberg.

Junior Ricky Kent of Colwood shot a 71 to finish second to Wakeham in the championship with 219. Bill McColl of Victoria was third at 224 after a 77.

Sunday's score: New Westminster 10 at Victoria 17.

There are still people who say Nirmal Dillon is too small to play lacrosse, but he must have converted a few skeptics Sunday.

The slight and speedy youngster scored five goals at Memorial Arena as he and brother Ranjit teamed up to lead Victoria Shamrocks to a 17-10 victory over New Westminster Salmonbellies in the Inter-City Junior Lacrosse League.

While Nirmal handled the lion's share of the scoring and Ranjit turned in a great checking chore, the two gave further credence to local claims that they are the fastest things to hit junior lacrosse in years.

Bill Munroe and Glen Vickers scored three goals each, Rod Kilduff added two, and Mike Woodley, Dave Collett, Bob Holness and Ray Beech scored once. Ron Flatten led New Westminster with four goals.

In a preliminary juvenile "A" game, New Westminster beat Victoria, 7-4.

New Park For Larks

MONTREAL (CP) — The Montreal Alouettes football club Friday announced plans for a 40,000-seat football stadium in the Montreal area.

The stadium, to be ready for the 1965 football season, will have an expansion potential of 60,000 seats.

Parking space for an estimated 10,000 cars will be built adjacent to the stadium, the club said.

THE Arnold PALMER METHOD

BAD GRIP MAY CAUSE FAULTY SWING PLANE

The way you grip your golf club has a direct bearing on the plane your club will follow during the swing.

If your grip is too "strong," with your hands turned too far to the right (illustration #1), chances are good that you will swing the club on too flat a plane -- more as a baseball player would swing a bat. This will make it difficult for you to properly swing downward and contact the ball before the turf on iron shots.

A "weak" grip (illustration #2) often produces too vertical, or upright, a swing plane. This, in turn, often causes topped or scuffed shots. Such a grip may also cause you to throw your club outside a normal path and produce sliced shots.

A correct grip (illustration #3) gives you the best chance to swing on a normal plane for a person of your body build. Employ such a grip to keep your swing "in the groove."

43-Pounder Puts City Man in Lead

Two 43-pound spring salmon were caught in lower Inland waters over the weekend—one at Oak Bay and one at Becher Bay—and there were reports of a youngster losing even a bigger one at Becher Bay—through the discourtesy of a fellow angler.

Rocky Maysmith, 1551 Gladstone Avenue, takes the lead in the spring salmon division of The Daily Colonist King Fisherman Contest with the 43-pounder he caught Sunday in the Gap between Discovery and Chatham Islands.

Mr. Maysmith was fishing with a Strip-Teaser and 60 feet of line when he hooked the lunker.

He takes the lead from Gordon Girton, 3828 Rowland, who held the lead since June 9 with a 41:8-pounder he caught at Becher Bay.

The 43-pounder caught at Becher Bay was taken by commercial fisherman George Gilbert and was not eligible for entry in the King Fisherman Contest.

Reports from Becher Bay indicate fishing was good at the weekend, with quite a number more than 30 pounds landed and a number of lunkers missed.

Reports are that one young fisherman had a fish on that was in excess of 43 pounds but lost it when a fellow fisherman crossed the young lad's line and just kept reeling.

It is common courtesy to let your line out when you have accidently crossed lines and let your fellow fisherman land his fish.

This way the fish is landed, you get your gear back, and everyone is happy.

Canadians Find Newspapers Best for News, Advertising

TORONTO (CP) — Advertisers and ad agency executives were told Monday that most Canadians in a sample study said the daily newspaper is best among the mass-communications media in providing information in depth, both in news and advertising.

Reports on two studies on the habits, attitudes and motives of Canadians in using newspapers, radio, TV and magazines were announced by the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association, which sponsored two detailed surveys last year.

One was made by Canadian Facts Limited, the other by the Institute for Motivational Research Incorporated of Croton-on-Hudson, N.Y., both in consultation with the Canadian Advertising Research Foundation.

Irving Gilman, DMR vice-president, told a CDNPA luncheon his company's study indicates the four media do not compete directly in the home but play complementary and supplementary roles.

Stop Children Shoplifting Parents Urged

A plea to parents to help keep their children from shoplifting was made by a Victoria Chamber of Commerce group last night as the first step in a campaign against shoplifting in Victoria stores.

★ ★ ★

At a special meeting attended by merchants, police, store detectives, private detectives and others, a committee was set up to investigate shoplifting and make recommendations to Victoria merchants on how to fight it.

Merchants said one big unanswered question is how much of stores' losses by theft is through stealing by the stores' own employees.

Private investigator Robert Wood said that in a test about a year ago he successfully lifted more than $200 worth of clothing once and another member of his agency lifted about $50 worth daily from a large Victoria store that had retained the agency to investigate shoplifting.

The store has since tightened its security precautions, he said.

Several persons said today's self-service impulse-buying merchandising probably leads inevitably to shoplifting and therefore shoplifting will never be completely licked.

★ ★ ★

A proposal for a central registry of persons caught shoplifting, whether or not they are legally prosecuted, went by the boards after it was said this would present serious legal difficulties and would be unfair to young persons caught once only.

A Hudson's Bay Company official said: "If we prosecuted everybody we caught, we'd be in court all day. We're in court half the day as it is."

Victoria police juvenile officer Lyle Somers said he does not think the schools should be held responsible for shoplifting by juveniles.

"The responsibility must go back to the parents," he said.

If children bring home goods, Mr. Somers said, parents should make sure they have not been lifted from stores. If children are trading goods among themselves, the parents should be sure their children are not receiving goods which have been stolen by someone else.

★ ★ ★

He said shoplifting by a juvenile is "only a beginning, where perhaps I or someone else can put a stop to it. If we can stop it, that's all we're interested in."

R. G. Macdonald of the T. Eaton Company said the first time a juvenile is caught shoplifting, his parents should be given the alternative of dealing with him themselves or having him prosecuted. The next time, he should be prosecuted, Mr. Macdonald said.

★ ★ ★

But he warned against "picking teen-agers out of a group of shoplifters." He said the biggest problem is professionals. "The shortages we're most concerned with are the ones that turn up at the end of the year and we don't know who did it or how."

Delegates to the meeting, called by the Chamber of Commerce retail merchants group, passed a resolution asking the press to publicize the need for parents to keep alert and make sure their children are not involved in shoplifting.

Harry Mills, Hudson's Bay store detective, said, however, that some parents adopt a don't-care attitude when notified their children have been caught shoplifting.

Too Many

Pickers Turned Away

So many persons volunteered to pick strawberries last weekend that some were turned away at the farms.

One girl, Nanci Johnston, 18, 1358 Craigdarroch, complained that she got out of bed at 6:30 a.m., took a special berry pickers' bus from downtown to Central Saanich where she and several others were turned away at several farms.

A National Employment Service spokesman confirmed that a few persons were turned away by the growers, but said that there is no control over this situation because there is no way of knowing how many persons will turn up when a call for pickers goes out.

NES sent out about 100 pickers yesterday, and the spokesman said 200 more will be needed today.

"Growers and the NES appreciate the public response, which was terrific—and we may have to appeal again," he said.

Tug New Firefighter

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Harbor Equipment Second to None

Victoria's harbor firefighting equipment is now second to none on the northern Pacific coast, fire chief John Abbott said yesterday after the christening of Island Tug and Barge's newest tug Island Rocket.

Sponsor at yesterday's ceremony at the company's dock was Mrs. R. B. Wilson, wife of Victoria's mayor.

The new tug has a firefighting capacity of 1,800 gallons of water per minute.

"Add this to the capacity of two other tugs and we have a total of 7,200 gallons per minute," said Gordon Elworthy, Island Tug operations manager.

The tugs are under contract to the city to fight fires within the harbor.

The Rocket's hull and houseworks were built by Starr Shipyards, New Westminster. It was then towed to Victoria and completed by Island Tug personnel.

★ ★ ★

Ald. Austin Curtis said the city would install a special FM radio set for direct contact with the fire department.

The 42-foot tug is powered by a 500-horsepower General Motors 16-cylinder engine. It draws eight feet of water and is 12 feet in the beam.

★ ★ ★

The monitors which direct the spray of water are driven by a 150-horsepower diesel-driven auxiliary engine.

"This permits the tug to manoeuvre full-bore at all times while fighting fires," Mr. Elworthy said. "There is no gasoline on the ship. It is all diesel and has the most modern foam firefighting equipment for fighting oil fires.

"It is Victoria harbor's most powerful harbor tug."

New hours of opening will be 8:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and 1 to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

New hours went into effect yesterday.

Happy Archer Report

Seeks World Title

Gift Began Family Sport

By TED SHACKLEFORD

Eleven years ago Frank Jones, a VMD welder, bought a child-sized bow-and-arrows set for his eight-year-old son, Bill. Next month, as a result, Frank travels to Helsinki, Finland, to contest the world archery championships.

It will be the first time Canada has been represented in the world contest. The championship begins July 22 and Frank hopes to leave Victoria about four days before then.

★ ★ ★

The Jones family, 316 Brunswick, heard the good news over the weekend.

But Frank Jones' trip to Helsinki—paid for by the Canadian Archery Association—is only one of a series of unusual events which started when he bought Bill his bow and arrows.

So Bill could learn how to handle the bow safely, Frank enrolled him in the Victoria Bowmen's Club. And then he got interested himself and took up the sport.

★ ★ ★

This left Mrs. Jones—"Mac" to her friends—an archery widow, so she took up the sport, too.

And when daughter Susan was old enough, she joined.

But there's more yet. The Jones family not only took up the sport, they darn near took it over.

Frank won the Canadian championship last year, retaining the title he won in 1961. "Mac" won the Canadian field championship for women in 1961 but couldn't defend the title last year as she was in hospital.

★ ★ ★

But she won the Canadian flight championship last year, anyhow.

Bill, now 19, has held the Canadian target championship, the Canadian flight championship, the B.C. target championship and the B.C. field championship. He held the B.C. titles for five years. He now holds the Pacific Northwest archery championship.

Susan, 15 years, already holds the Pacific Northwest clout championship—where the target is laid face up on the ground and contestants 100 yards away drop their arrows onto it—and last year won all the junior girls' events in the Vancouver Island championships.

She also won the junior girls championship in B.C. field and target competition.

★ ★ ★

When Frank gets to Helsinki the Island will also be represented in his equipment—he shoots a bow, with a pull of about 30 pounds, which was made up-Island.

Police 'Clean' In Oak Bay

The Archer report on Greater Victoria policing gives Oak Bay's police force "a very clean bill of health," Oak Bay Reeve George Murdoch said last night.

The reeve said at a meeting of Oak Bay council that the report has been studied by the Oak Bay police commission and a minor recommendation put into effect.

Council voted to send a copy of the report to the head of the Oak Bay policemen's union and invite comment, although the reeve said policemen would probably be favorably disposed to the report, since an overall Victoria force would mean more pay and more chances for promotion for Oak Bay policemen.

The reeve made no other reference at the meeting to proposals for a metro police force.

Coun. Allan Cox, however, said the report "has proven that we were right in not being bulldozed into a metro police force a year ago. We correctly assessed the situation at the time."

Coun. J. D. Watts said: "I don't thing the matter is of enormous urgency. Even if a metro force took place, it would have to wait for improvement in the Victoria police. Otherwise it would be unfair to other people."

The report said Victoria police should be reorganized before a metro force is brought into being.

Esquimalt Meeting Secret

Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele will hold a closed meeting with the Esquimalt police commission at 4 p.m. today to discuss the Archer Report, it was announced at last night's Esquimalt council meeting.

Reeve Wurtele said there would be no immediate report on the meeting, but that it would be discussed at the next regular council meeting, July 2.

★ ★ ★

Revision Started By City

Victoria police commission will meet shortly to implement some recommendations of the Archer report on operations of the police department.

The major decisions, including staff changes, however, will have to await the appointment of the successor to John Blackstock as chief constable, Mayor R. B. Wilson said.

REVAMPING SET

The mayor added that "a number of recommendations would be implemented quickly" among the most important being the revamping of the charge office which came in for scathing criticism from former RCMP superintendent George Archer.

The commission met briefly behind closed doors yesterday morning with senior officers of the force.

SEARCH FOR CHIEF

The mayor said there is still nothing to report on the search for a new chief that was touched off by Chief Blackstock's resignation on the eve of the publication of Mr. Archer's survey of the department.

By JACK FRY

In the biggest name-calling session in months, majority of Saanich council last night dissociated itself from the amalgamation views of Reeve Stanley Murphy and Coun. Hugh Curtis.

During discussion of the controversial Archer report, council went on record by a 5 to 2 vote as "vigorously opposing the disfranchisement of Saanich ratepayers in the matter of amalgamation of the municipality of Saanich to the city of Victoria."

It dissociated itself in the same action "from the opinions expressed by Reeve Murphy and Coun. Curtis," and called for copies of the decision to be sent to Premier Bennett, the minister of municipal affairs and Saanich MLA John Tisdalle.

Reeve Murphy hinted that a metropolitan police force recommended in the Archer report may be created in Greater Victoria despite the views of Saanich councillors.

He said he learned in talks with Attorney-General Bonner and the deputy attorney-general that "there are certain changes they desire."

"I had the clear impression there are certain things which they intend to carry out if necessary without our support," Reeve Murphy told council. He did not elaborate.

Sewer Plan Delayed

Charges levelled in the free-for-all council meeting:

● Coun. Gregory Cook charged that "dissention on council already cost us the Sewers IV scheme. As long as this lasts, this is what will happen to our public works program."

He said that the pollution control board which blocked Saanich's plan to empty effluent into the Colquitz did not come into being until after the last December election, and that the sewers bylaw would have been put to the voters in that election if it had not been for the amalgamation referendum.

● Coun. Passmore told the reeve that "You and Coun. Curtis are lacking in municipal ethics . . . if you had any morals or ethics you would abide by the majority decision (two amalgamation referendums which were defeated)."

He said he was suspicious of reasons given for delay in construction of a new municipal hall for Saanich.

Leave Until Election

● Coun. Ostler told the reeve that "it is undesirable and unnecessary for you to continue to bring the question of amalgamation up—I suggest it would be fairer to the people of the municipality and council if these things were left to election campaigns."

● Reeve Murphy countered that members of council opposed to his policies had held a "private meeting in January" to plan their course of opposition.

"Shackles were placed on my feet, and I will continue to rattle them on every occasion," he said.

● Coun. Curtis declared that "I have no intention of abandoning my opinions for the sake of lack of dissention around this table . . . if I am elected again, I will keep trying."

Coun. Joseph Casey was starting to make a motion that "an open letter from the majority of council" be sent to Premier Bennett, when Coun. Passmore introduced the motion which was finally passed.

Open Letter Opposed

"Saanich council does not approve of this (open letter from Reeve Murphy asking the government to bring about amalgamation now.) You were acting on your own. I think council would heartily disapprove of this," Coun. Ostler told the reeve.

"That was abundantly clear in December," Reeve Murphy replied.

"I'm not at all satisfied. If anything is said officially, it should be with the permission of council," said Coun. Cook.

Coun. Cook said of the Archer report: "I think the way this report has been handled has been abominable from the very beginning."

He said the city policemen had a hard enough job with criminals before they were labelled as "inefficient," and that their task will now be that much harder to perform.

"Victoria could have just as easily replaced their chief if they thought it was necessary. They didn't need all this hoopla in the newspaper. As a matter of fact, bringing in a new chief won't solve the problem," Coun. Cook said.

Coun. Ostler said that his interpretation of the Archer report was that a metropolitan police force is not needed at this time.

Roy Harding, a student at St. Joseph's Hospital School of Nursing, has won a bursary from St. John Ambulance.

Mr. Harding was one of 13 undergraduate and graduate students of nursing who won a total of $3,200 in bursaries.

Thieves Take Car Engine

An engine valued at $240 was stolen from a car parked at Oak Bay Avenue and Bank Street, city police said last night.

Brian Newstead, 909 Kings, said the car had been parked at the location for the past three weeks, and he didn't know when the engine was taken.

The battery and a tire were also taken from the car.

Driver Injured In Collision

Robert G. Flower, 64, of 2847 Rockwell, suffered a broken left elbow Monday when the car he was driving was in collision with one driven by Robert B. Ogilvy of Osoyoos, at Hillside and Douglas.

Clear Cut Picture For Fall Fashions

By DOROTHY WROTNOWSKI

TORONTO—Fall and winter fashions previewed here give a clear cut picture of what we'll be wearing next season.

Luckily it was a little cool here, so that tweeds, woollens and fur collars didn't seem too far fetched.

I really had expected to be a little confused after seeing so many styles, but not so; the trends are quite definite.

First and foremost the clothes shown were so wearable. Except for the one or two show stoppers.

Of course the models were tall and slender but even so the styles will be adaptable for most women.

General trends included short, slim skirts for day wear. The skirts actually looked shorter than ever. Most had a four-to-six-inch back pleat and those that didn't had a neat, short, side split. These skirts appeared in suits, casual wear and after-five dresses.

LONGER JACKET

The longer suit jacket, fur-collared, is news and the shawl fur collar was back again on both suits and coats. Mink was in the lead in fur trim.

"The Sportive Look" was the way commentator, Michelle Tisseyre, described daytime wear.

Casuals with double knits to the fore are just what the word implies.

This daytime dress of double knit by Pantel of Montreal shows the easy, relaxed Sportive Look with emphasis on the stretched-out waist and longer torso. In stone green, the inserted pleats are contrasting autumn gold.

Several of the double knits were three-piece, a jacket, slim skirt and blouse of toning or contrasting color.

Colors were named "Indian Summer" with taupe, beige, subtle greens vieing with golds, browns and vivid red.

The long, covered-up look is in for evening. All but one of the evening dresses were full length sheaths, several split nearly to the knee.

Beading, metallic thread and floating panels come into the evening picture.

The narrow-strap evening dress just wasn't there.

Black and white combinations and cold blue were color choices in practical looking ski wear.

The high boot which made its appearance last year will be back in force if the numbers shown with coats and sportswear are any indication.

These boots, mostly black, reach anywhere from lower calf to just below the knee. Many had little spike heels.

The story that women are stealing men's hats is true. Several of the hats today were fedoras fancied up a bit. Hats by Jerry Yates, had quite high crowns and small brims, turned up at the back.

The one design from Vancouver was a raincoat!

The preview showings of Union Label fashions was presented by the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union at the luxurious, new hotel, the Inn on the Park.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I wish I could get my hands on that little snip who didn't want to invite her fiance's friends to their wedding because they were truck drivers.

I am a college graduate and I married a truck driver. We have three bright children, own a comfortable home, take a three-week vacation every year (twice to Europe since '56) and I have a beautiful nine-stripe beaver coat with a mink collar.

The girl who wrote that letter must be living in the dark ages. Today truck drivers make a handsome living. Many of our friends who are professional people and executives of large companies are struggling to get by, but not us.

I am proud to me married to a Knight of the Road. SHE should have it so good.—THE KNIGHT'S LADY.

Dear Lady: Many truck drivers' wives wrote to say it's a great life, but you said it best. Thanks for your letter.

★ ★ ★

Dear Ann Landers: I went steady with Eddie for a year. We decided to call it quits because of religious differences which could not be resolved. I'm 20, so please don't think this letter is from a giddy high school sophomore.

It took several months to get over my heartache but I did recover and I'm now dating a terrific guy who is a friend of Eddie's.

When we first started to date I made him promise to keep it strictly platonic. I had had enough of love and didn't want to be hurt again. He has kept his word, darn it, and this is my problem. I'm sick to death of this brother-sister kick. I've fallen hard and I'm sure he has, too, but he's afraid to make the first move and it's all my fault.

We've been dating for three months and if he gives me one more goodnight handshake I'll scream.—SELF-VICTIMIZED.

Dear Self-Victimized: Don't scream. You may frighten him away. Just tell him in plain English that your busted heart had healed and you are ready to give love another chance. If he gives you a handshake after THAT confession, he's no candidate.

★ ★ ★

Dear Ann Landers: It's the time of the year when my husband begins to hear "the call of the wild."

We have two sons, 10 and 12 years of age. Ever since the boys have been old enough to walk we have spent three weeks every summer camping out—and I DO mean out. My husband picks the most God-forsaken, primitive spots he can find. Some of our campsites have been so rocky and miserable even the Indians didn't want 'em.

Last year I told him I was through dragging along dishes, pots, pans, bedding, and canned goods, washing clothes by hand and doing without plumbing. A person has to be crazy to leave the conveniences of home and work the way I did. He agreed it was the last time he'd ask me to do it.

Well, now he's talking tents again and I am doing a slow burn. I'm perfectly willing to rent a cabin, but no more roughing it. He accuses me of being selfish and depriving the boys of real outdoor life. What do you think, Ann? — THE MULE (HIS NAME FOR ME.)

Dear Mother: Tell nature boy you've had it with the Lewis and Clark bit and you're holding him to his promise of last year. The boys can get plenty of outdoor life and still sleep in a bed at night and take a bath in a tub.

If he insists on another tent vacation, tell him to drop post cards when he goes into town for sunburn lotion and mosquito netting—that you'll be waiting for him at home.

Mother More Important

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. H. Nichol, assistant professor of child psychiatry at the University of British Columbia, told the Canadian Psychiatric Association conference Saturday a child's mother is more important than his father.

"If a child's mother dies in his first seven years of life, it could well give rise to psychiatric problems in adult years."

Dr. Nichol said young children don't understand the finality of death, nor are they able to grieve with a full understanding of their loss until they are eight to 11 years old.

Mrs. C. Y. Brown, AWE observer to the Oak Bay Council, summarized her reports for the 1962-63 year and spoke on some of the practices of the council as a representative body and the record of voting by councillors on various important issues.

All women interested in municipal affairs are welcome to attend these discussion groups whether or not they are members of the AWE. Times and places of meetings will be announced during the summer months.

Bride Carries White Orchids

Pink carnations and snapdragons decorated First United church for the wedding of Merna Audrey Jenkin and Miles John Travis Dighton on Saturday evening.

Rev. Dr. R. McElroy Thompson officiated at the service for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard V. Jenkin, 2364 Dunlevy Street and the son of Mr. Malcolm E. Dighton, 250 Douglas Street and the late Mrs. Dighton.

As the bride entered the church with her father the church choir sang "Holy, Holy, Holy." During the ceremony they sang "The Lord's Prayer" and the Hebrew Benediction and while the register was being signed, "Crimond."

The bride wore a gown of pure silk over bridal taffeta styled with cathedral train and Swiss lace outlining the portrait neckline. A juliet cap of Alencon lace with scattered lace medallions held her misty veil of illusion and her bouquet was of white orchids, stephanotis and lily-of-the-valley.

Mrs. W. Raper was matron of honor, Mrs. J. Downes, bridesmatron, Miss Pam Griffith, bridesmaid and Miss Marjorie Ann Bunston, junior bridesmaid.

They wore short dresses of azalea pink pure silk organza fashioned with fitted bodices, scooped necklines and multiple shirring forming fully ruffled skirts. Azalea pink glamellias and feathered carnations were in their crescent bouquets.

Mr. Peter P. Gregory was best man and Mr. Alex Crawford, Mr. Roy Lowe and Mr. Monty Little showed guests to the pews.

The reception was held in the Crystal ballroom of the Empress Hotel where the bride's table was centred with a three tiered pink and white cake. Flowers and candles carried out the pink and white color scheme. Mrs. A. Lindsay, Duncan, Mrs. E. Bunston, Vancouver, Mrs. J. R. Roberts and Mrs. A. Crawford poured tea and coffee. Mr. J. R. Roberts proposed the toast.

The couple left later for a honeymoon at Harrison Hot Springs and the State of Washington. Mrs. Dighton travelled in a Louis Shrier original suit in golden summer haze tone, with matching print blouse and hat. Accessories were of brown cobra and her corsage was a white orchid.

TV TALK

By JIM TAYLOR

You can argue for Johnny Carson or plug Jack Paar, but the best of the "talk" shows by far is the Steve Allen show, and the best of the best is on TV tonight at 6:30 on Channel 7.

The show is a 90-minute special, The Best of Steve Allen, featuring acts that have drawn the biggest response in the first season of shows.

For instance, there is comedian Shecky Greene drawing a standing ovation for his impersonation of Harry Belafonte; a Lawrence of La Mirada skit, various vaudeville acts, and the voices of Mel Torme and Jennie Smith.

Allen's show is tops because no one knows what is going to happen next — sometimes not even Allen. It is spontaneous although it is filmed, for the simple reason that if there is a goof, it stays in the film. No one cuts anything.

"I'm on TELEVISION? REALLY?"

That was the way it was on the old pre Paar-Steve Allen show, and the way it was when Paar was at his best. The watered-down Carson and the quietened-down Paar are pale imitations this season.

PRICES
on most building materials—lumber and plywood—are increased because of the sales tax imposed by the new budget. This is effective immediately. In addition many lumber products are affected by the pricing on export markets, especially U.S.A. In most cases manufacturers sell and receive $1.08 on American funds for products which normally sell for $1 here. This causes an 8% increase in local prices.
Further strength and demand has come into the Canadian Lumber market because many lumber and plywood mills in Washington and Oregon are on strike and buyers are seeking supplies in British Columbia which again tends to force prices up.
Local lumber dealers have absorbed many new costs including higher factory prices, wage increases, hours of work acts, and numerous other increased operating charges.
We will continue to bring you the finest in service, selection, at the lowest possible prices. Please be assured we will continuously offer alternative and improved products which we will have available at most competitive prices.

A brand new home, beautifully designed, well built. A home that anyone would be proud to own. The private entrance leads to a large living room with corner fireplace, mondrian windows, brick planter and is designed for good furniture placement. The large dining room is divided from the living room by a screen with an Oriental motif. The family room is large and near the easy to work in kitchen. Off the family room is a sun deck. The three large bedrooms feature sliding door closets and they too are much larger than normal. The main 4-pce bathroom has a tiled tub enclosure and the powder room is magnificent. The vanity is L-shaped and there is a 12 sq. ft. plate glass mirror. The house is located in Gordon Head on sewer. We believe there is nothing to match this in Victoria. $95 P and I. $13,685. Byron Price, EV 5-2458 anytime.

IS THIS YOU?

"I want a distinctive home that I can be proud to own. It must be easy to live in and good to look at and this eliminates the 'stucco box'. I don't want to live on a street with small lots or a street with houses looking like a row of blocks—the house set backs and the design must vary. Briefly, I want a home and district with some character. The area must be increasing in value, too, to make it a good investment. I want planned landscaping for the whole district—not just my home. I want a home that is properly sited and oriented to take the maximum advantage of the weather, view and my own privacy. I require some fencing. I want a swimming pool and a park for the community. There must be elementary, junior and high schools and the University; also shopping and bus service in close proximity to my home. I want a fully serviced lot and I don't want to be paying taxes on all the services. I want low NHA interest and the privilege of a low down payment without secondary financing or any other gimmicks. I think that most second hand Victoria housing is at least $2,000 overpriced and I won't pay for this. I want a home that has a written guarantee—well built and well designed—and I want the best housing investment available."

The only one in Victoria who can meet your demands is Byron Price, EV 5-2458. Our construction company will build you this home in this district.

Winning Contract

By HOWARD SCHENKEN and RICHARD L. FREY

Dramatic plays are rarely required at the bridge table, and kibitzers have been known to complain after watching an expert play in a serious event that nothing he had done seemed difficult or clever. But this deal is one of the exceptions: West had to rise to the occasion in a highly dramatic manner.

Vul: None	NORTH ♠ 10 7 6 ♡ A J 10 5 ♢ K Q 2 ♣ J 10 5
WEST ♠ 8 4 ♡ K 6 3 ♢ J 10 9 4 ♣ Q 8 6 3		EAST ♠ Q 5 3 ♡ Q 9 8 ♢ A 8 7 5 ♣ K 9 2
	SOUTH (D) ♠ A K J 9 2 ♡ 7 4 2 ♢ 6 3 ♣ A 7 4

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	2♣	Pass
2♠	Pass	3♠	Pass
4♠	All Pass

Opening lead: Diamond jack

The modern style of bidding gives North a headache on this hand. In the old days, he would have responded simply with two hearts, and everyone would have been happy. But as many play today, the specific response of two hearts to one spade is expected to be based on a five-card or longer heart suit. As North is too strong for one no trump, the only alternative is to make a waiting bid in a minor suit. Two clubs keeps the bidding low and may avert a club lead in some circumstances.

Although the last two bids were doubtful, the final optimistic contract of four spades was not easy to defeat. The diamond jack lead went to the queen and ace, and a diamond was returned to the king. South ran the spade ten and drew trumps before leading a heart.

This was the critical point in the play. Suppose that West makes the routine play of a low heart, and the ten forces East's queen. South cannot then be prevented from making three heart tricks with the help of a second finesse. Dummy's last heart provides a discard for a club loser.

But West made a dramatic and expert play by putting up his heart king on the first heart lead. Declarer had to win with the ace, and continued with the jack. East co-operated by holding up his queen, and declarer eventually had to lose two club tricks to go down one. West would have had to make the same play if he had held the heart queen instead of the king.

BIG GEORGE! By Virgil Partch

"KID WHICH umpire?"

Free Graft Method

New Surgical Procedure Grows New Heart Arteries

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (CP) — Development of a surgical procedure to encourage growth of new arteries in patients suffering from coronary artery disease was reported today to the American College of Chest Physicians and the American Medical Association.

The report was presented by Dr. Arthur Vineberg of Montreal, who developed the technique. It was prepared by him and co-surgeons R. Pifarre, R. Criollos and Y. Kato, all of Montreal.

GRAFT SYSTEM

The method, which the report says has produced satisfactory results among 12 patients in combination with another operation, utilizes a free omental graft.

The procedure is used primarily when all three major coronary arteries are diseased.

It utilizes the greater omentum, an apron-like tissue within the abdominal cavity. A section is removed, attached to the aorta — body artery — and wrapped about the heart muscle.

SEEKS BLOOD SUPPLY

It was found, through early experiments with animals, that the free omental graft seeks and obtains a blood supply and forms a connection between the three coronary arteries and the heart muscle.

The experiments showed also that when all three arteries were artificially constructed, there nevertheless was 90-per-cent survival when the omental graft was used and 100-per-cent survival when it was used in combination with internal mammary artery implantation.

By means of the implant operation — used on humans since 1950 — a chest artery, the internal mammary, is detached and placed within the heart muscle, bypassing diseased arteries and bringing an extra blood supply to the heart.

"It would seem that we have been successful in encouraging new coronary arteries to grow from the ascending aorta out into the free omental graft," the report said.

WITH NETWORK

"These arteries have been shown to communicate with the vast vascular network in the omental graft. The omental graft, in turn, has excellent communications with the arteriolar network of the heart and the pericardium."

In connection with the combined implant and graft operations on the 12 humans, the report said the results have been "most satisfactory." There has been no evidence that the graft dies.

"The patients have done remarkably well, and some of the early ones have returned to work pain-free, or having only slight pain."

B.C. Man Goes To Arizona For Course

Provicial anthropologist Wilson Duff left Sunday for a six-week course at the Arizona State Museum in Tucson, sponsored by the American Asociation of Museums.

The only one chosen from Canada, he will join 30 museum people from all over the U.S.

Latest findings in anthropology will be reviewed with emphasis on how they can be presented by museum methods. There will be field trips to Navajo and Hopi Indian reservations.

5,000 Indians Must Go As Area Becomes White

By HENDERSON GALL

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) An aroused community of 5,000 Indians in a Johannesburg suburb is under firm orders to get out because the area has been scheduled as "white" under South Africa's apartheid (racial segregation) laws.

The Indians of Pageview suburb have been there for 50 years. Their property and business interests are estimated to be worth millions of dollars.

UP IN ARMS

Premier Verwoerd's nationalist government recently proclaimed the suburb as "white," despite opposition from the Johannesburg city council. All Indians in the area now must move to Lenasia, a new town about 20 miles away. Indian businessmen are up in arms. They claim that 90 per cent of their business is done with whites.

The government's decision was described by the Rand Daily Mail, a Liberal Johannesburg newspaper, as "the most damaging blow yet dealt" to any Indian community in South Africa. There are about 500,000 Indians in the country.

The newspaper added that the government action "offends against all principles of decency and demonstrates that the nationalists are determined to push ahead with their apartheid program regardless of whom it hurts and how."

Pageview is a busy Indian trading section near the centre of Johannesburg. It was set aside as a non-white area in 1902.

One of its major services to whites is tailoring. Solly Surtees, a big clothing merchant, says: "I can honestly say that 99 per cent of my clients are white. Without them I have no hope of continuing my business."

'No Moral Wrong'

Let Dying Die Says Bishop

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Roman Catholic Bishop Fulton J. Sheen said Sunday night he sees no moral wrong in avoiding extraordinary measures aimed at keeping alive a patient in the final stage of fatal or seemingly hopeless illness.

"If I were dying," said the bishop, "and they had tubes in me to keep me alive, I would ask them that the tube be taken out . . . I see no moral issue."

SPECIAL SESSION

He made the remark just before a special session on "medicine and religion" at the annual meeting of the American Medical Association.

A Protestant physician, Dr. Edward H. Rynearson, also expressed opposition to the use of extraordinary means to keep dying patients alive.

At a joint conference both men stressed that their stand had nothing to do with mercy killing. They said all ordinary means should be taken to keep the apparently hopelessly ill patient alive.

Neither made any reference to treatments given Pope John XXIII in the last stages of his mortal illness.

ASK DOCTOR

Bishop Sheen said he would urge relatives of a patient to take the doctor's advice on whether a patient should be kept alive by extraordinary methods.

Dr. Rynearson, of the Mayo Clinic, said he is firmly opposed to keeping "human vegetables" alive through such measures as tube-feeding, oxygen tents, heart-lung machines and other techniques.

LET THEM DIE

"I'd let them die," he said.

When a reporter asked for the difference between "extraordinary" and "ordinary" means of keeping a mortally ill patient alive, Dr. Rynearson said:

"There is nothing to be proud of in keeping an unconscious patient alive for 11 years . . . If you put a patient in a constant care unit, it's just about impossible for him to die."

"If anyone can take pride in that, I don't understand it."

Bids Called On New Span

VANCOUVER (CP) — Tenders were called for a 680-foot concrete suspension bridge to span the Peace River, four miles upstream from Hudson Hope.

Plans for the two-lane bridge were submitted by Phillips, Barrat and Partners of Vancouver, consulting engineers to the provincial department of highways.

Bids for the project are due July 16, and construction is expected to start soon after. The bridge, with a 28-foot road deck, should be complete by late 1964.

Compulsory Reading Of Bible Barred

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court has barred Bible-reading and recital of the Lord's Prayer in public schools as part of required classroom exercises.

The court in its 8-1 ruling Monday did not spell out whether such observances would be possible on a permissive, rather than a required, basis but did bar the establishment of such exercises by majority rule.

Oak Bay Beach Hotel Sold

One of Victoria's best-known hotels, the Oak Bay Beach Hotel, has been sold.

Sale was announced by Mrs. H. C. MacDonald, owner of the hotel, who, assisted by her two sisters, Mrs. Anne Sealinger and Mrs. Frances Jordan, have operated the hotel since 1946.

CALGARY INTERESTS

The hotel will be taken over July 1 by two Calgary men, Art Davis and Norman Dutton.

Mr. Dutton, son of Calgary contractor and well known sports figure Mervyn "Red" Dutton, will operate the hotel.

Mr. Davis is a well known Calgary hotel operator and also has hotel interests in B.C.

"They have said there will be no changes made to the hotel," said Mrs. MacDonald.

"This makes us very happy as we have always tried to preserve the hotel's atmosphere and have made only one change since we have been here," she said.

ENGLISH PUB

The change referred to by Mrs. MacDonald was the Snug, a room styled after an English pub that has been popular with local residents and out-of-town visitors.

The collection of traditional and contemporary paintings gathered by Mrs. MacDonald on world-wide travels will be staying at the hotel.

In a notice to hotel staff and guests, Mrs. MacDonald said:

"All this would make me terribly unhappy if it were not for the fact that they want the three of us and all our staff to stay with them."

Community Plan Urged

Juvenile delinquency in British Columbia should be treated at the community level, investigator Cecil W. Gorby said in a hard-hitting report released by the government yesterday.

Mr. Gorby, who is now studying the urban areas of Vancouver and Victoria, recommended in an interim report on the treatment of juvenile delinquency that the government should start girding itself now for the task ahead.

First step should be the formation of an inter-departmental committee from which would stem other agencies reaching down to the community level, he said.

* * *

The inter-departmental committee would include representatives of the department of education, department of health, attorney-general's department and department of social welfare all of which provide services relative to the problem of juvenile delinquency.

It would be up to this committee to set policy and show leadership in the formation of a youth services sub-committee, around which a community youth services board can be formed.

"The local authorities of health, welfare, education and attorney-general will meet as a special community sub-committee on any matter pertaining to confidential family case material.

* * *

"But it should include municipal, church, industrial, recreation and representation from any other agency helping youth when it meets as a community services board to consider general community questions such as school drop-outs, adult education, employment of youth or youth rehabilitation," stated Mr. Gorby's report.

It was also recommended juvenile court judges be advised not to conclude orders connected with the removal of a juvenile from the community "until he has received a recommended social plan from a responsible member of the caucus or sub-committee, preferably the probation officer."

"The Youth Services Board would sponsor one remand home for each judicial area, assist in establishment of small boarding homes, group-living homes and related resources, and make recommendations about such things as vocational guidance, employment opportunities for youth and registration and follow-up of school drop-outs.

The information contained in the booklet was compiled in response to many enquiries received from businessmen, salesmen and tourists concerning the closing days for retail and wholesale establishments in various centres throughout the province.

The closing days as shown indicate the day observed by the majority of establishments for each centre.

Copies of this booklet can be obtained from the Department of Industrial Development, Trade and Commerce, legislative buildings.

Seattle Site Of Protests On Housing

SEATTLE (AP)—About 400 Negroes and whites staged an hour-long demonstration in front of city hall here Monday, protesting alleged housing discrimination in Seattle.

Another group held a protest march and rally Saturday concerning alleged bias against Negroes and Orientals in hiring practices by some of the city's largest department stores.

Both demonstrations were orderly.

Seattle Mayor Gordon Clinton said he will ask the city council to establish a human rights commission to investigate racial problems. But Rev. Mance Jackson, chairman of the demonstration committee, said he did not think the city had any intention of doing anything.

Amsterdam International Airport is KLM's home base. KLM has carried over 12 million passengers a total of 14½ billion passenger miles.

KLM offers 9 weekly flights from Montreal, 4 daily flights from New York during peak Summer season

During Summer, at least 35 KLM flights a week cross the Atlantic to Europe. This gives you a choice of 4 or more flights a day, plus convenient connections at Amsterdam. KLM's European flights in and out of Amsterdam are timed to connect with KLM flights to and from Montreal and New York. Your Travel Agent has all the details. Ask him.

1. KLM carries an average of 3830 passengers every day—about twice the capacity of a big ocean liner. KLM has an electro-mechanical check-in system at Amsterdam International Airport. This system reduces check-in time per passenger to a minimum. It also mechanically produces a load sheet and thus speeds loading time. Every KLM sales office in Canada gets up-to-the-minute space availability information every day on KLM connecting flights.

2. Your KLM crew goes to work two hours before your plane takes off. They finish about an hour after you have arrived at your destination. Significant comment: a veteran KLM pilot sums up his job in these words:—"Being a jet pilot is just like being a concert pianist. You have to keep on practicing even when you're perfect."

3. KLM sets very high standards for its cabin crews. They must be pleasant, capable, polite—in short, ideal hosts and hostesses. They are trained to anticipate passengers' wants. Quite a few KLM stewards and stewardesses speak five or six languages. Some speak seven or eight. They must at least speak Dutch, English, French and German.

4. A large percentage of KLM pilots are family men. 88.1% are married, 79.1% of them are fathers. For some pilots, loyalty to KLM is a family affair. Three are sons of former KLM pilots. There are four pairs of brothers flying for KLM. One of these pairs has a third brother who is a purser. KLM pilots are all well educated. Three of them are doctors of law.

5. KLM Economy Class passengers enjoy exactly the same friendly personal attention as First Class passengers do. The cuisine is simpler, of course, but comes from the same chefs and the same kitchens, and wines and other drinks are available at nominal charge. For instance: a quarter bottle of top quality champagne costs just 75 cents and a glass of good Scotch whisky is just 60 cents on KLM's trans-Atlantic routes.

6. KLM has a permanent wine-tasting committee of six people. It meets once a year to judge red wines and twice a year to judge white wines. Tasting is done blind. Nobody on the committee knows the vintage or the price. KLM wines are chosen for quality alone. Quick-ripening wines are selected because they travel well. There is no risk of sediment.

7. One of the skills of KLM chefs is knowing what passengers are most likely to choose from a menu. This takes years of experience. You always have a good chance of getting a dish you like on a KLM flight. KLM prepares special diet food for passengers who request it as they book their seats. KLM pursers are always briefed on these special diets before passengers come aboard.

8. On all scheduled KLM flights, each passenger has his own individual table, whether he flies Tourist, Economy or First Class. On KLM's intercontinental First Class flights, you get slippers, hot towels, champagne and other wines "on the house".

9. The cabin of a DC-8 jet is 12 feet wide. This is wide enough to take 6 seats abreast comfortably. KLM's First Class cabins have only 4 seats abreast. KLM's DC-8 jets have two pantries—for faster service, five flush toilets and several cloakrooms, the cabin, air-conditioned on the ground as well as aloft, gets a fresh supply of air every three minutes.

10. Travelling First Class on a KLM DC-8 jet, you sit in unstinted comfort. Your seat is as wide as an armchair, has built-in table lamp, pre-focussed reading light, air blower and finger-tip control panel. Each seat cost KLM U.S. $1,500. Every KLM DC-8 jet has a luxuriously appointed lounge, located in First Class. It is a perfect place to meet your fellow passengers over free drinks.

11. Several reigning monarchs and their families have used KLM's charter services. KLM charter planes are flown by the same full-qualified and experienced crews as scheduled flights. KLM's don't-take-any-risks maintenance applies to all its aircraft—charter or otherwise.

12. KLM's biggest charter contract was concluded with an oil company for the transportation of its employees and equipment. It lasted six years. KLM operates about 500 charter flights a year across the North Atlantic and about 1500 a year all over the world. KLM charter service is available all year round.

13. "KLM Gateway to Travel Enchantment" is an invaluable booklet packed with useful information to help you plan your European vacation. As well as containing details on a wide range of KLM tours and multi-stopover possibilities, it also includes tips on Amsterdam International Airport's tax-free shopping facilities, how to rent a car, etc. All you need to do to get your free copy is to complete and mail the coupon at the bottom of this advertisement.

14. "What You Should Know About Reliable KLM When Planning Your Trip To Europe" is another booklet that tells you everything you should know about KLM and KLM's unsurpassed service. You'll find that it's full of worthwhile information on how to make your European trip just that much more enjoyable. To get your free copy, simply complete and mail the attached coupon.

15. KLM flies to every continent in the world. KLM has been established in Canada since 1946 and now has offices in principal Canadian cities. Something worth noting: KLM has daily flights out of Montreal and New York for Europe. During the peak Summer season, you can choose from nine weekly flights from Montreal and four daily flights from New York.

16. See your Travel Agent. Having themselves been professionals in the field of air transportation for 44 years, KLM recognize that it takes professionals to plan trips efficiently. In every city in Canada, KLM is represented by a professional—your Travel Agent.

Firemen's Park Centre Site

Proposals for an Oak Bay recreation centre would put the centre at Firemen's Park, Oak Bay council learned last night.

The centre would include:

- Club and game rooms, including accommodation for all age groups;
- A 25-metre swimming pool with eight seven-foot-wide lanes, a 25-foot-by-25-foot instruction bay and seating accommodation for 300 on one side;
- An arena with a 210-foot-by-85-foot ice surface, permanent seating for 1,000 on one side, and a small permanent stage;
- A six-sheet curling rink with ice surface 85 feet by 135 feet, a club room, locker room, office and store room;
- Parking space for 600 cars —400 to start with—and landscaping.

Formal acceptance of the preliminary design for Centennial Square was recommended to city council yesterday by the committee in charge of overall planning.

The consultant architects, meanwhile, were instructed to prepare detailed working drawings for the new city hall and municipal offices on which construction is scheduled to start in October.

The final landscaping plan for the square was also ordered. It has a circular motif with "carpets" of lawn between concrete and brick walking surfaces on three tiers, taking advantage of the 10-foot fall between Douglas and Government streets.

The committee also decided to call tenders imediately for demolition of three adjoining buildings on Cormorant.

Ald. Arthur Dowell, a city representative on the Capital Improvement District Commission, assured the committee that there was every indication that the provincial government would approve a $70,000 grant for the square in the near future.

The surrounding municipalities are giving another $30,000, as a gift for the city's 100th birthday, which will be spent on a fountain to be designed by city planner Roderick Clack as the focal point of the square.

Mr. Clack also informed the committee that a decision should be made soon on preparation of detailed plans for both the civic theatre and the senior citizens recreation centre.

He said the schedule drawn up for implementation of the total $2,000,000 scheme over a period of three to four years would be disrupted by any considerable delay at this stage.

Polling booths for an Esquimalt byelection to elect a council replacement for G. K. Sammon, who died in England in May, have been set for the Esquimalt Municipal Hall and 855 Craigflower Road. The election will be held July 10.

Squamish Fire Still Unconfined

SQUAMISH (CP)—A forest fire which now has spread over an estimated 500 acres of slash and bush and encircled more than a dozen summer cottages was still not confined Monday 15 miles north of this Howe Sound town.

A crew of 80 men, including loggers recruited for the fire lines, have been battling the blaze almost without rest since it sprang up Sunday in timber stocks on a logging claim.

Drug Curbs Possible

WINNIPEG (CP)—A federal official says the government may tighten controls on the use and distribution of drugs.

Eleanor Ordway of Ottawa, chief of consumer relations for the food and drug directorate, said proposed legislation would halt the indiscriminate distribution of drug samples.

Under the measure, salesmen, physicians, dentists and pharmacists would be required to record names and addresses of people to whom drugs were issued. Issuers would also list date, quantity and type of drug given to people and institutions.

Miss Ordway was interviewed in Winnipeg while attending the Canadian Association of Consumers' conference.

The government, she said, may also ban certain products judged harmful to consumers.

Reward Pondered

VANCOUVER (CP) — Apparently there still is a chance that a reward will be paid in connection with recovery of loot from the Loomis Armored Car Company theft here Victoria Day weekend.

Lawyer Thomas Griffiths, representing the insurance company that would have to make good the loss to the Loomis firm, said Monday the question of reward is still under consideration.

NO RECOMMENDATION

He was reported as saying earlier Monday that he would recommend that no reward be paid to three men for helping recover $294,656 taken from the Loomis office here.

"I don't say there are not going to be any rewards," he said. "But there are civil and criminal cases pending, and it would be unwise to go into the matter now."

Don Hall, a motel operator, Lloyd Green and lawyer James Margach have applied for a reward.

Mr. Margach said he has every reason to believe that the insurance company will do "what the public thinks is the fair thing."

"And the public does expect to get a reward for such a thing."

The money was left in Hall's motel at Hope, 100 miles east of here. When he became suspicious of a suitcase, he, Mr. Green and Mr. Margach called police.

Mr. Griffiths said no reward will be paid to Gustavo Borgus, chief of police of Rio de Janeiro who arrested Douglas Brown and sent him back to North America. Brown has been charged with the robbery.

Socreds Win In Landslide

EDMONTON (CP)—Social Credit scored a landslide victory Monday in Alberta's general election.

The pattern was similar to the last election in 1959 when only four opposition members were elected out of the 65-seat house. Since the last election seats have been reduced to 63. The government won 60.

Re-election of the party which has governed the province for 28 years was reported by The Canadian Press 50 minutes after polls closed at 8 p.m. MST.

March Marks Revolt

BERLIN (UPI) — West Berliners, 1,000 strong marched on the Berlin wall last night in a demonstration against the Soviet's crushing of the East German revolt 10 years ago. Police used water cannon to drive back the crowd.

West Berlin police rushed reinforcements to the Friedrichstrasse crossing point — the U.S. army's Checkpoint Charlie —and sealed off the border before the crowd, made up mostly of youths, could touch off a new East-West incident.

TOWARD WALL

The 1,000 demonstrators had been taking part in a torchlight parade held to mourn the workers who died in the revolt of June 17, 1953. Two columns of 500 each split off and marched toward the wall down Stresemannstrasse in the American sector.

They began shouting, "Freedom for the zone."

Several hundred demonstrators marched toward Checkpoint Charlie.

West Berlin police turned a water cannon on the crowd approaching the checkpoint and drove it back.

TORCHLIGHT

The torchlight parade was held after 100,000 West Berliners rallied in front of City Hall for German unity and self-determination for East Germans.

The parade route was from city hall to a monument on the Kreuzberg Hill. The parade to the monument was orderly, but hundreds of demonstrators aroused by hotheads split off and marched to the wall.

Earlier Monday, the East German Communists charged that West German "bandits" damaged the trade ministry in East Berlin with a bomb and set other bombs that did not explode. However, the building did not appear to be damaged.

NO INJURIES

No injuries were reported in the explosion about 400 yards from the wall. Western officials said the bombs were apparently set off by anti-Communist East Germans.

As the demonstrators approached the area last night, they faced a cordon of 200 police, who ordered the marchers to disperse and tried to persuade them to leave the border.

"You can't act this way on a solemn anniversary," a police officer shouted to the crowd.

Leaders of the march on the wall said the demonstration was organized by the Peter Fechter Action Group, named after a young refugee who was shot when trying to escape and then left to die.

Grudging Support For Mac

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Macmillan won a grudging vote of confidence Monday night after a slashing opposition attack on his handling of the Profumo-Keeler sex and security scandal and defections in his own Conservative party.

By 321 to 252, the 69-year-old Macmillan was given a mandate in the House of Commons to carry on as chief of government.

But he is expected to step down soon, possibly this summer, and let a younger man try to clean up the Conservative party's badly-smudged image.

MARGIN SHRINKS

The Conservatives normally have a 97-seat edge over the combined opposition in the House but Macmillan's victory margin was only 69.

The closeness of the vote reflected growing discontent among Conservatives with Macmillan's leadership. One Conservative suggested in the debate that Macmillan step aside soon.

28 TORIES ABSTAIN

Twenty - eight Conservatives abstained from voting as an expression of their displeasure with Macmillan's stewardship.

Reuters news agency said the outcome was a heavy moral defeat for Macmillan, since before the opposition began its massive onslaught on him in

Osteopath Remanded For Week

LONDON (Reuters)—Osteopath Stephen Ward was ordered held in custody for another week Monday after police testified one witness in his case was warned to leave the country within 48 hours.

Ward, 50, is a key figure in the scandal surrounding former war minister John Profumo who resigned over his affair with model Christine Keeler.

Ward was remanded on a charge of living on the earnings of prostitution. Police said further similar charges would be laid against him.

MOSCOW (UPI) — Dimple-chinned Valentina (Seagull) Tereshkova, singing to the stars, beat the American man-in-space record Monday.

Moscow Radio reported the 26-year-old brunette had completed 23 orbits that had carried her more than a half million miles through space. She messaged her mother not to worry.

Her second day in space put her ahead of America's space star, Gordon Cooper, who completed 22.9 orbits last month, and she was still orbiting.

★ ★ ★

The Russians also disclosed that the first woman to explore the mysteries of space had scored another cosmic first:

Flying to within 3.1 miles of her companion astronaut, Lt.-Col. Valery (Hawk) Bykovsky in the closest that space ships ever have come to a linkup.

Just before the whirling pair went to sleep in their separate space ships again last night, Tass news agency said Valentina sent this message:

"Tell Mama, and all the mothers of the world, that I have great confidence in my ship. It was built by the Soviet people — it is a very dependable machine."

★ ★ ★

The Tass correspondent, reporting from the "flight control centre," also said that following a conversation with Bykovsky, she could be heard singing.

"But it was impossible to recognize the song Valentina was singing to the stars," Tass said.

It is said that in between conversations, the flight control centre broadcast Tchaikovsky's First Piano Concero to the orbiting couple at Bykovsky's request. Tchaikovsky also is one of Valentina's favorites.

Bykovsky's orbiting time had changed from an original 88.4 minutes to a flat 88 minutes and there was some speculation he might have to be brought back to earth before the end of the eight days originally planned for his flight.

By 10 p.m. Monday, Bykovsky had made 54 trips around the earth and Valentina had made 23.

One report mentioned the possibility of a third cosmonaut being placed in orbit soon, but there was no official confirmation of this.

★ ★ ★

Several hours after "Valya," as she has come to be known, entered her second day in space she had committed only one known miscue.

Moscow Radio reported she overslept during her first slumber in the hurtling Vostok 6. The chief designer of the Russian girl's space ship failed to raise her when he signaled her from the ground.

But after some minutes delay, during which the caller contacted Bykovsky, Miss Tereshkova came on the radio and apologized for oversleeping.

There seemed to be no chance the two space voyagers would try to make a physical contact in space. Their trajectories were slightly different although both were traveling in the same 65 degree orbit in relation to the equator.

Tass said more precise data flights showed that Sunday the of the trajectory of the two plump but attractive cosmonette and the darkly handsome cosmonaut had flown within five kilometers (3.1 miles) of each other.

This bettered the four miles apart achieved by Russia's last space twins, Pavel Popovich and Andrian Nikolayev, last August.

Since Popovich and Nikolayev reported later they had sighted each other, presumably Bykovsky and the brunette cosmonette could see each other even more clearly.

At 3 p.m. Monday, Bykovsky, 28-year-old Red air force pilot, started his fourth day in space. He then had completed

Cosmonaut Romance Rumored

MOSCOW (UPI) — Those romance rumors already are starting up about the world's first space woman, Valentina Tereshkova.

Her boy-friend is supposed to be fellow cosmonaut Andrian Nikolayev, the only bachelor among Russia's five experienced spacemen.

Some stories have gone so far as to say they are engaged and hope to be married after Valentina returns to earth.

Others say they are just good friends, as any man and woman working close together in the same profession might become.

Nikolayev, who sailed through a 64-orbit journey around the earth last August, was said earlier to have had another girl-friend who broke with him when he went secretly into cosmonaut training and never could explain to her the reason for his long absences.

★ ★ ★

Stand-In Was Ready

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet press disclosed Monday that Russia has a number of cosmonettes and one had been ready to replace Valentina Tereshkova on her history-making flight into space if it had been necessary.

As usual, the woman's name was not disclosed.

The Communist Party newspaper Pravda said the stand-by cosmonette is "just as talented as Valya (diminutive for Valentina), able to take facts into account . . . and (was) ready to replace her at any minute in the cabin of the cosmic space ship."

Pravda said both girls watched the launching of Valentina's space twin, Valery Bykovsky, in Vostok 5.

Confers with Leaders

JFK Seeks Rights Plan

★ ★ ★

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy conferred with congressional leaders of both parties Monday in his search for a civil rights program that one conferee said "will cover everything."

This assessment came from Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois who told reporters he believes there is an "area of agreement" between the Republicans and administration leaders on a number of proposals.

★ ★ ★

Kennedy continued his efforts to ease racial tension by calling in 200 religious leaders for discussion. The president wants them to exert moral leadership in their communities to bring about racial equality.

Kennedy expects to send a special message to Congress Wednesday outlining a series of civil rights proposals and signalling the start of what promises to become a bitter senate battle with southerners attempting to prevent a vote by filibustering.

In an effort to round up as much national support as possible behind his program, Kennedy plans another meeting with state governors today.

Race Violence Threatened

CAMBRIDGE, Md. (UPI) —A Negro leader told a cheering rally last night that demonstrations will resume unless suspended negotiations over racial grievances begin again. He said the federal government had promised to move into the situation if necessary.

Reginald Robinson, representing the Student Non-Violent Co-ordinating Committee, said Negroes will take to the streets of Cambridge in defiance of national guard troops unless negotiations are under way by 8 p.m. today.

Crowds Pay Tribute To Murdered Negro

WASHINGTON (AP) — Solemn Negroes by the hundreds, young and old, turned out Monday to honor the memory of Medgar Evers, slain Mississippi field secretary for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

About 500 persons, including a few whites, marched a mile from Union Station to a funeral home behind the hearse carrying his body.

Other hundreds watched from sidewalks and homes and another big crowd assembled near the funeral home to see six Negro desegregation leaders and Arnold Felman, director of the American Veterans Committee, carrying the white, flag-draped coffin inside.

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Charles Evers, brother of slain integration leader Medgar Evers, sought Monday to settle an internal struggle for Negro leadership in the tense civil rights battle in this staunchly segregated Mississippi capital.

Whatever the outcome, new street demonstrations were anticipated here. Other protests were expected to resume in the south after a weekend of violence in North Carolina and protests in other southern states.

The fight pitted militant Negroes demanding immediate action at whatever price against the disciples of the non-violent movement whose leader is Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. of Atlanta.

Valentina 'Feels Fine'

Valentina Tereshkova, 26, first woman launched by Russians into orbit around earth, apparently takes food from container during training session. Soviet news agency Tass said Miss Tereshkova an ex-fire factory worker, "withstood well the orbiting of space ship Vostok 6. She feels fine." (AP Photofax.)

Rocky Point Explosion Injures Two

By BOB PETHICK

Two civilian naval workers were seriously injured in an explosion at Rocky Point arsenal yesterday.

Most seriously hurt was Frank A. Gibbons, 45, of 1045 Esquimalt Road. He was listed in poor condition in St. Joseph's Hospital with injuries to his arms, hands and abdomen.

J. A. Valentine, 62, of 622 Head Street, was in fair condition. His left hand had to be amputated as a result of the explosion.

BLOOD ON WALLS

Blood spattered the walls of the heavily-constructed explosives proving building. Valentine, though in great pain, remained conscious and stumbled from the building to get help.

First aid was administered by fellow inspector Hal Wallace during the wait for the ambulance. One man was conveyed in an ambulance from Belmont Park, the second in an ambulance from HMC Dockyard.

HEARING OPENS

The navy immediately opened a preliminary hearing into events leading up to the explosion that injured the two inspectors of naval ordnance.

Both were veterans in the department of national defence and were conducting routine proving tests at the time of the explosion.

PREPARE BOOSTER

A naval spokesman said the two inspectors were preparing an explosive booster enclosed in a brass container for routine test firing. The component being tested was two ounces of explosive.

Both men were members of a close-knit inspectors' team that had been together for more than 16 years. Friends said they were popular members of the staff.

The navy last night officially classed the explosion as "minor." There was no damage to the building where the explosion occurred.

A spokesman stressed the buildings are designed so that an explosion in one will not be a hazard to other buildings.

UNAWARE OF ACCIDENT

Due to the way buildings are dispersed for safety, most of the workers at the arsenal were unaware an accident had occurred until quitting time at 4:30 p.m. The explosion went off about 3:30 p.m.

It was believed to be the first accident with explosives to occurt at Rocky Point. A full scale enquiry will likely follow the preliminary hearing.

Pest Plans Changed

OTTAWA (CP) — A conference of North American forestry experts was told Monday that public resentment against the use of chemical insect controls is forcing the U.S. forest service into a crash program of research on biological control.

Edward Cliff, chief of the U.S. forest service, warned that "a strong body of public resentment" has formed as the result of Rachel Carson's best-seller, Silent Spring.

Vote Called 'Club'

Dock Talks Go On

VANCOUVER (CP) — The two parties in a threatened longshoremen's strike met Monday and will meet again today.

George McKee, general manager of the British Columbia Shipping Federation, said after the meetings:

"We're still talking and we'll be back again tomorrow . . . I'm pleased that the talks are continuing."

He declined to discuss what was talked about with representatives of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (CLC).

It was the first meeting since members of the union voted 93.5 per cent to empower the executive to call a strike if necessary.

Ray Smith, chairman of the negotiating committee, described the vote as a "club."

Alanbrooke Dead at 79

LONDON (CP)—Field Marshal Viscount Alanbrooke, British Second World War leader, died Monday at his home at Hartley Wintney, Hampshire. He was 79.

He was chief of the imperial general staff through most of the Second World War from 1941 to 1946. He was promoted to field marshal in 1944 and became a viscount in 1945.

★ ★ ★

Lord Alanbrooke commanded the 2nd Army Corps of the British Expeditionary Force in France from 1939 to 1940. After the retreat from Dunkerque he became commander in chief of home forces until his promotion to the post of chief of the imperial general staff.

Alan Francis Brooke was born at Bagneres de Bigorre, France, July 23, 1883, the son of the late Sir Victor Brooke and Lady Brooke-Colebrooke of Bronkeborough, County Fermanagh.

★ ★ ★

He was twice married—first to Jane Mary Richardson in January, 1914. She died in 1925. His second marriage was to Benita, the widow of Sir Thomas Lees. By each marriage he had a son and a daughter. The daughter of the second marriage died.

He is succeeded to the title of Viscount Alanbrooke by his 46-year-old son, Thomas.

Alanbrooke, a constant companion of former prime minister Winston Churchill during the Second World War and a main architect of the allied victory, was to have taken part in a ceremony at Windsor Monday as a knight of the Garter—one of Britain's chief orders of chivalry.

At the ceremony, attended by Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, a special prayer was offered for the war-time leader.

Sugar Price Drops Again

VANCOUVER (CP) — The wholesale price of sugar dropped 20 cents here Monday to $15.25 a hundredweight.

Last Friday refiners cut their prices by 35 cents.

"The market is collecting itself after the violent changes in the last few weeks," said a spokesman for the B.C. Sugar Refining Company.

MPs Reject Debate On Budget Experts

OTTAWA (CP)—An opposition move to bring about an emergency Commons debate on the part played by three outside experts in preparation of the federal budget was beaten down Monday by the Liberal government, helped by Social Credit.

Later, taking advantage of an opening set up by a Social Credit member, Finance Minister Gordon explained how a Calgary law firm was able to receive from the minister's former Toronto firm a summarized version of changes in the budget at 9:30 the morning after it was unveiled here.

The summary was prepared by the Toronto accounting firm of Clarkson, Gordon and Company, with which Mr. Gordon used to be associated.

TELEGRAM EXPLAINS

The explanation was contained in a telegram Mr. Gordon read to the House from the senior partner in the accounting firm, J. R. M. Wilson.

The telegram stated the firm received copies of the budget from the Bank of Canada at the normal release time; resolutions were photocopied and explanatory memorandums attached, and these were then airmailed overnight to western clients.

The matter had been raised by Douglas Harkness (PC—Calgary North) who called for a full explanation in view of questions about the secrecy of the budget.

The move for a special debate on three Toronto businessmen being brought in by the government to help prepare the budget was made by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker. He was supported by T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader.

Last Friday Mr. Gordon admitted under opposition questioning that M. P. O'Connell and C. H. Stanley, Toronto investment dealers, and G. R. Conway, a post-graduate student at Harvard, had been engaged as temporary assistants in the finance department. The minister said at the time that both investment dealers remained on the payroll of their respective concerns.

Aid Groups Meet

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP)—In the first such meeting ever held, about 100 representatives from foreign-aid organizations in Canada met Monday to shape a more integrated and streamlined attack on world poverty.

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin said perhaps the time has come when "we should give consideration to a more effective method of dispensing foreign aid . . . because the amount of aid that individual countries give to those countries who need it is so insignificant in terms of need . . ."

But one of the great problems in Canada was that people generally were not convinced of the importance of foreign aid.

"Trade unions, for instance, give strong support in principle to the matter of foreign aid. But my experience has been that when you come to an actual confrontation in an election, they are among those who are most violently opposed to it."

The three-day conference is sponsored by the Canadian Welfare Council, the Canadian Committee of the International Conference of Social Work, and the Overseas Institute of Canada.

Final Papal Tribute

VATICAN CITY (CP) — The Roman Catholic Church paid solemn farewell to Pope John XXIII Monday before dignitaries of many nations, the clergy of other Christian faiths and representatives of Judaism.

Cardinals, princes and political leaders attended a requiem mass in the vaulted grandeur of St. Peter's Basilica.

Pope John's family and boyhood friends were at St. Peter's.

Sadler Shines in Victoria Goal

Wolverhampton Struggles to 2-1 Win Over Stars

GOALIE BARRY SADLER OF VICTORIA BATS AWAY DRIVE BY WOLVERHAMPTON

Soccer Thrills 3,000

By JIM TAYLOR

The Wolves of Wolverhampton were turned loose on Victoria all-stars last night—and almost bit off more than they could chew.

With a crowd of 3,000 solidly and uproariously behind them, the pick of city soccer fought touring Wolverhampton to a standstill for 70 minutes of high-speed, high-tension soccer, then bowed, 2-1, in their exhibition match at Royal Athletic Park.

Granted that Wolverhampton kept regulars Chris Crowe and Jimmy Murray on the bench in the first half. Granted the Wolves used their No. 2 goalkeeper, and had high-scoring forward Ted Farmer injured and unavailable.

COME CLOSE

But on this night the all-stars met first division soccer with first division soccer. A draw would have been a more fitting score, and they came close to getting it—much too close for the comfort of Stan Cullis, the bellicose boss of the touring side.

Cullis, still fuming about that 2-2 draw against Bangu of Brazil Saturday in Vancouver, paid all-stars the tribute of sending in his troops for the second half, and it was Murray who beat them on a cute play with John Kirkham with 24 minutes gone.

NO CHANCES

From there Wolves took no chances of sullying a tour record whose only blemish is the draw against Bangu. They played it cool and careful, more than content with a one-goal edge against a side they probably underestimated.

Wally Milligan's all-star club—Victoria United augmented by members of the district league—had one of those nights when almost everyone was at the top of his game. And on top of the lot were Barry Sadler and Dave Stothard.

SADLER GREAT

Sadler dived for loose balls, leoped to tap aside high and whistling drives, and saved half a dozen apparently sure goals. Seconds after Murray's winning goal he had another shot, point blank, and threw his arms in the air in triumph—only to see Sadler get to where he couldn't possibly be for the save.

As for Stothard, he merely added to his credentials as Canada's top fullback. He was the anchor of a stout defence, and he got ample support from fullback Len Anderson and George Wright and Pat Mulcahy on the half line.

Wolverhampton, driven on by the sparkling Peter Broadbent at inside forward, came out shooting, and cannoned shot after shot at Sadler in the opening minutes. With three minutes gone, centre-forward Barry Stobart took a Broadbent pass, stepped nimbly past Ash Waldal, and left-footed a drive into the top corner.

Wolves were on their way, but they were stopped short five minutes later when all-stars' Bill Hamilton made the play of the night.

HEADY PLAY

George Paul, who played his best game of the year, bulled past Broadbent and whistled a pass across the goalmouth. Hamilton, back to the net, threw himself headlong, twisted, and headed the ball inches off the ground into the net.

That was to be all the scoring until Murray's winner, but there were chances galore, and more for the losers than for Wolves.

Henry Vanderhorst, a busy and useful man on the wing, hit a post with Finlayson beaten; Bill Abbott had two good chances on the other wing before the first half ended; Hamilton headed a ball over the open net early in the second half, and Vanderhorst was just wide twice.

And then, the most heartbreaking of all for all-stars—Stothard on a cross from Chummy Crabbe, barging up the middle for a long, low drive that grazed the post on the outside at 32 minutes with the shot that would have tied the score.

OVER CROSSBAR

Murray could have put it away for Wolves with eight minutes left when Stobart was pulled down in the penalty area by Anderson. But he put the penalty shot clear over the crossbar.

It was just as well. A draw would have been justified, and a one-goal edge wasn't far off. Any wider spread, on this night at least, would have been rank injustice.

Wolverhampton Wanderers — Malcolm Finlayson; George Showell, John Harris; Fred Goodwin, Dave Woodfield, Ken Knighton; Terry Wharton, John Kirkham, Barry Stobart, Peter Broadbent, Gerry Harris. Reserves—Chris Crowe, Jimmy Murray, Fred Knowles, John Galley.

Cardinals Wheel Into First Place; Cleveland Coming Up With Rush

By The Associated Press

Ernie Broglio's five-hit pitching and a 15-hit attack gave St. Louis an 8-1 triumph over New York Mets Monday night and sent the Cardinals into the National League lead by one-half game over Los Angeles.

The Dodgers dropped San Francisco from first to third place by beating the Giants 2-0 with the four - hit pitching of Sandy Koufax and Moose Skowron's decisive two-run double off Billy O'Dell in the third inning. The shutout was Koufax' sixth and gave him a 10-3 record.

In other NL games, consecutive home runs by Roy Sievers and Don Demeter powered Philadelphia to a 4-2 triumph over Cincinnati and Willie Stargell hit two homers and drove in six runs in Pittsburgh's 9-3 beating of Milwaukee. Houston and Chicago were not scheduled.

Broglio, 8-2, was touched only for an unearned run—the first run the Mets have scored against him in three games. Bill White homered for the Cards while Ken Boyer and Curt Flood collected three hits each.

Baltimore Orioles, shaken after a disastrous weekend that saw them drop to fifth place in the American League, finally got squared away yesterday.

Mike McCormick tossed a six-hitter for a 7-2 victory over Boston Red Sox, who had clobbered them, 8-1, and 12-5, Sunday. McCormick was the first pitcher on the potent Oriole staff to go the distance in the past 23 games, and he hit the second home run of his major league career for good measure.

It was only the fourth victory in the last 18 games for Baltimore, now three games behind the front-running New York Yankees and Chicago White Sox.

Cleveland Indians scored their only run on a balk by Jim Duckworth of Washington to win 1-0 and post their 15th victory in their last 17 games.

Sunday was the busiest day of the season in the major leagues, with 10 doubleheaders causing quite a shuffling in the standings.

Yanks completed a four-game sweep over Detroit Tigers, winning 4-0 and 6-3 behind Ralph Terry and Bill Stafford, but they couldn't shake the Sox, who stayed a mere nine percentage points behind by taking Kansas City, 2-1 and 3-2.

TWINS SKID

Meanwhile Cleveland's hot Indians took two from Washington, 4-2 and 6-3, and Minnesota Twins dropped back to sixth, losing twice to Los Angeles Angels, 5-3 and 5-4.

In Sunday's National League Action, Cincinnati Reds were the only club to gain any ground, beating New York Mets, 11-5 and 10-3 while other clubs split doubleheaders.

Highlight of the day was a 2-0 victory over Chicago Cubs by 22-year-old lefthander Nick Willhite in his debut for the Dodgers.

With Harry Young

Alarmed by the time-consuming tactics which are creeping into the game, the B.C. Golf Association is taking positive steps to combat slow play in the B.C. Amateur championship at Richmond next month.

Provincial directors at their monthly meeting in Vancouver last week drew up a list of instructions which will be distributed to all players in the provincial championship.

The executive says that it is incumbent upon the competitive golfer to exhibit the same high regard for conduct and etiquette on the course as he does for skill at play.

Provisions of Rule 37 (7) of the laws of golf state that players shall at all times play without undue delay. Between the completion of a hole and driving off the next tee, a player may not delay play in any way. The penalty in medal play is two strokes and loss of hole in match play. For repeated offence the player may be disqualified.

Amplifying this rule, the B.C. Golf Association has laid down certain local rules which will be strictly enforced by the starter or authorized tournament officials.

Each threesome in medal play will be timed when it leaves the first tee, reaches the turn and leaves the 18th green. If any threesome takes more than two hours to play either nine holes, all players in that three some may be penalized, if the starter sees fit.

Competitors also may be penalized for failing to keep their position on the course. If delays are created by one or more persons, then the penalties may be imposed on that individual or individuals, as the starter deems equitable.

It is hoped that the timing and the stationing of officials at strategic points on the course will do much to speed up play in the competition.

The BCGA says "The aim is merely to guarantee that players will move briskly between shots and will do all planning and preparation for each shot before the time comes to play it."

George Bigelow won medal honors in the Victoria Golf Club championship qualifying round Saturday shooting one over par 70. One stroke behind was Bill McColl, who lost his chance by three-putting the 17th green. Third place went to junior Jay Wilson with 75.

Just back from a golfing holiday in the interior, where I had a couple of rounds over the new 18-hole course at Kelowna.

Designed by Victoria's own golf architect, Vernon Macan, the Kelowna course has set a new standard for the B.C. interior. With four holes of over 500 yards, it is not only a good test for the long hitter, but because of its strategically placed trees and hazards puts a premium on accuracy as well.

The greens, though new are good. Once a new short eighth hole is completed and a number of new traps installed the course will rank as one of Macan's best.

Kelowna wants to host the 1964 provincial amateur championship, and it is certainly well equipped to do so. It is also a factor in their favor that this championship has never been played outside the Vancouver-Victoria areas.

* * *

We also played at Jasper where Ron MacLeod is preparing for another big season. Both Jasper and Banff courses are now within fairly easy reach of the B.C. coast through the opening of the Rogers Pass route, and both MacLeod and Malcolm Tapp, the Banff pro, say they are seeing more B.C. golfers than they have ever done in the past.

Players who took part in last year's Cowichan Open tournament at Duncan have been mailed entry forms for this year's event July 1, over 36 holes.

They must return these entries to the club by June 20 if they wish to compete. Entry is limited to 60, and the club has a waiting list of players to fill vacancies.

Vital match in the Inter-Club League will be played at Uplands Wednesday evening when Uplands meet Gorge Vale in the fifth of the series of six round robin matches.

Uplands leads the league by one point from Gorge Vale, and both Victoria, the holders, and Colwood who meet at Oak Bay, appear too far behind to rank as contenders.

Uplands with home advantage appear to have a sound chance of going further ahead and opening the way for a first victory in this competition.

Big match of the evening will be between Bill Wakeham who leads off for Gorge and his young rival Gary Smith. In the match at Gorge Vale three weeks ago the pair finished all square after an exciting contest.

The matches, with their starting times:

Stop Children Shoplifting Parents Urged

A plea to parents to help keep their children from shoplifting was made by a Victoria Chamber of Commerce group last night as the first step in a campaign against shoplifting in Victoria stores.

★ ★ ★

At a special meeting attended by merchants, police, store detectives, private detectives and others, a committee was set up to investigate shoplifting and make recommendations to Victoria merchants on how to fight it.

Merchants said one big unanswered question is how much of stores' losses by theft is through stealing by the stores' own employees.

Private investigator Robert Wood said that in a test about a year ago he successfully lifted more than $200 worth of clothing once and another member of his agency lifted about $50 worth daily from a large Victoria store that had retained the agency to investigate shoplifting.

The store has since tightened its security precautions, he said.

Several persons said today's self-service impulse-buying merchandising probably leads inevitably to shoplifting and therefore shoplifting will never be completely licked.

★ ★ ★

A proposal for a central registry of persons caught shoplifting, whether or not they are legally prosecuted, went by the boards after it was said this would present serious legal difficulties and would be unfair to young persons caught once only.

A Hudson's Bay Company official said: "If we prosecuted everybody we caught, we'd be in court all day. We're in court half the day as it is."

Victoria police juvenile officer Lyle Somers said he does not think the schools should be held responsible for shoplifting by juveniles.

"The responsibility must go back to the parents," he said.

If children bring home goods, Mr. Somers said, parents should make sure they have not been lifted from stores. If children are trading goods among themselves, the parents should be sure their children are not receiving goods which have been stolen by someone else.

★ ★ ★

He said shoplifting by a juvenile is "only a beginning, where perhaps I or someone else can put a stop to it. If we can stop it, that's all we're interested in."

R. G. Macdonald of the T. Eaton Company said the first time a juvenile is caught shoplifting, his parents should be given the alternative of dealing with him themselves or having him prosecuted. The next time, he should be prosecuted, Mr. Macdonald said.

★ ★ ★

But he warned against "picking teen-agers out of a group of shoplifters." He said the biggest problem is professionals. "The shortages we're most concerned with are the ones that turn up at the end of the year and we don't know who did it or how."

Delegates to the meeting, called by the Chamber of Commerce retail merchants group, passed a resolution asking the press to publicize the need for parents to keep alert and make sure their children are not involved in shoplifting.

Harry Mills, Hudson's Bay store detective, said, however, that some parents adopt a don't-care attitude when notified their children have been caught shoplifting.

Grounds Sought As Park

PORT ALBERNI—Two NDP members, John Squire, MLA, and Tom Barnett, MP, are working on a plan to have the grounds of the old Bamfield Cable Station taken over by the provincial department of parks and recreation.

The project was first proposed by Bamfield Chamber of Commerce to ensure that the partially cleared grounds be retained as the first marine park for Barkley Sound area.

Mr. Squire said it has been learned recently that private interests have been negotiating to purchase the land surrounding the Canadian Overseas Telecommunications Corporation buildings. It is understood, he said, that the main building will be reserved for use of the COTC for cable storage.

Because of the historic interest of the land and because of the fact that it is partially cleared he considered that the government would be well advised to consider its development as a park.

GOOD FISHING

Mr. Squire pointed out that the area is adjacent to good freshwater fishing as well as being on saltwater.

There are good beaches nearby. The fact that completion of the road to Bamfield is imminent, increased the need for park facilities in the area, he declared.

So far, he has had no indication that the recreation department is interested.

BOATERS' PARADISE

In a letter from Ottawa Mr. Barnett said:

"I feel that while at the present time the advantages of Bamfield as a boaters' paradise are not too widely known, once public access is more easily available, it will become a favorite haunt of holidayers from widespread parts of the country.

FOR PUBLIC USE

"I feel the efforts of the Bamfield Chamber of Commerce to have this location preserved for public park use are to be commended and encouraged. We in B.C. will be well advised to take a leaf from the book of the state of Oregon in keeping a large part of our west coast shoreline in the public domain.

"The attractions of the Oregon coast are internationally known.

"Ours is quite as attractive and can be equally famous if we are prepared to use a little foresight at this time."

Harbor Equipment Second to None

Victoria's harbor firefighting equipment is now second to none on the northern Pacific coast, fire chief John Abbott said yesterday after the christening of Island Tug and Barge's newest tug Island Rocket.

Sponsor at yesterday's ceremony at the company's dock was Mrs. R. B. Wilson, wife of Victoria's mayor.

The new tug has a firefighting capacity of 1,800 gallons of water per minute.

"Add this to the capacity of the Island Monarch and we have a total of 7,200 gallons per minute," said Gordon Elworthy, Island Tug operations manager.

The three tugs are under contract to the city to fight fires within the harbor.

The Rocket's hull and houseworks were built by Starr Shipyards, New Westminster. It was then towed to Victoria and completed by Island Tug personnel.

★ ★ ★

Ald. Austin Curtis said the city would install a special FM radio set for direct contact with the fire department.

The 42-foot tug is powered by a 500-horsepower General Motors 16-cylinder engine. It draws eight feet of water and is 12 feet in the beam.

★ ★ ★

The monitors which direct the spray of water are driven by a 150-horsepower diesel-driven auxiliary engine.

"This permits the tug to manoeuvre full-bore at all times while fighting fires," Mr. Elworthy said. "There is no gasoline on the ship. It is all diesel and has the most modern foam firefighting equipment for fighting oil fires.

"It is Victoria harbor's most powerful harbor tug."

Lake Mishap Kills Foreman

CAMPBELL RIVER — Matthew Huculak, 42, of Vancouver, drowned Sunday in Long Lake in the Quinsam area Sunday afternoon when his canoe overturned.

Police here said Mr. Huculak was alone in the canoe at the time, but that two witnesses on the shore who called to him had no idea what caused the canoe to overturn.

Two Campbell River skin-divers were taken to the scene and recovered the body.

Mr. Huculak was foreman for Peterson Electric Ltd., doing high-tension work on the extension to Elk Falls mill.

Police 'Clean' In Oak Bay

The Archer report on Greater Victoria policing gives Oak Bay's police force "a very clean bill of health," Oak Bay Reeve George Murdoch said last night.

The reeve said at a meeting of Oak Bay council that the report has been studied by the Oak Bay police commission and a minor recommendation put into effect.

Council voted to send a copy of the report to the head of the Oak Bay policemen's union and invite comment, although the reeve said policemen would probably be favorably disposed to the report, since an over-all Victoria force would mean more pay and more chances for promotion for Oak Bay policemen.

The reeve made no other reference at the meeting to proposals for a metro police force.

Coun. Allan Cox, however, said the report "has proven that we were right in not being bulldozed into a metro police force a year ago. We correctly assessed the situation at the time."

Coun. J. D. Watts said: "I don't thing the matter is of enormous urgency. Even if a metro force took place, it would have to wait for improvement in the Victoria police. Otherwise it would be unfair to other people."

The report said Victoria police should be reorganized before a metro force is brought into being.

By JACK FRY

In the biggest name-calling session in months, majority of Saanich council last night dissociated itself from the amalgamation views of Reeve Stanley Murphy and Coun. Hugh Curtis.

During discussion of the controversial Archer report, council went on record by a 5 to 2 vote as "vigorously opposing the disfranchisement of Saanich ratepayers in the matter of amalgamation of the municipality of Saanich to the city of Victoria."

It dissociated itself in the same action "from the opinions expressed by Reeve Murphy and Coun. Curtis," and called for copies of the decision to be sent to Premier Bennett, the minister of municipal affairs and Saanich MLA John Tisdalle.

Reeve Murphy hinted that a metropolitan police force recommended in the Archer report may be created in Greater Victoria despite the views of Saanich councillors.

He said he learned in talks with Attorney-General Bonner and the deputy attorney-general that "there are certain changes they desire."

"I had the clear impression there are certain things which they intend to carry out if necessary without our support," Reeve Murphy told council. He did not elaborate.

Sewer Plan Delayed

Charges levelled in the free-for-all council meeting:

● Coun. Gregory Cook charged that "dissention on council already cost us the Sewers IV scheme. As long as this lasts, this is what will happen to our public works program."

He said that the pollution control board which blocked Saanich's plan to empty effluent into the Colquitz did not come into being until after the last December election, and that the sewers bylaw would have been put to the voters in that election if it had not been for the amalgamation referendum.

● Coun. Passmore told the reeve that "You and Coun. Curtis are lacking in municipal ethics . . . if you had any morals or ethics you would abide by the majority decision (two amalgamation referendums which were defeated)."

He said he was suspicious of reasons given for delay in construction of a new municipal hall for Saanich.

Leave Until Election

● Coun. Ostler told the reeve that "it is undesirable and unnecessary for you to continue to bring the question of amalgamation up—I suggest it would be fairer to the people of the municipality and council if these things were left to election campaigns."

● Reeve Murphy countered that members of council opposed to his policies had held a "private meeting in January" to plan their course of opposition.

"Shackles were placed on my feet, and I will continue to rattle them on every occasion," he said.

● Coun. Curtis declared that "I have no intention of abandoning my opinions for the sake of lack of dissention around this table . . . if I am elected again, I will keep trying."

Coun. Joseph Casey was starting to make a motion that "an open letter from the majority of council" be sent to Premier Bennett, when Coun. Passmore introduced the motion which was finally passed.

Open Letter Opposed

"Saanich council does not approve of this (open letter from Reeve Murphy asking the government to bring about amalgamation now.) You were acting on your own. I think council would heartily disapprove of this," Coun. Ostler told the reeve.

"That was abundantly clear in December," Reeve Murphy replied.

"I'm not at all satisfied. If anything is said officially, it should be with the permission of council," said Coun. Cook.

Coun. Cook said of the Archer report: "I think the way this report has been handled has been abominable from the very beginning."

He said the city policemen had a hard enough job with criminals before they were labelled as "inefficient," and that their task will now be that much harder to perform.

"Victoria could have just as easily replaced their chief if they thought it was necessary. They didn't need all this hoopla in the newspaper. As a matter of fact, bringing in a new chief won't solve the problem," Coun. Cook said.

Coun. Ostler said that his interpretation of the Archer report was that a metropolitan police force is not needed at this time.

Esquimalt Meeting Secret

Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele will hold a closed meeting with the Esquimalt police commission at 4 p.m. today to discuss the Archer Report, it was announced at last night's Esquimalt council meeting.

Reeve Wurtele said there would be no immediate report on the meeting, but that it would be discussed at the next regular council meeting, July 2.

Revision Started By City

Victoria police commission will meet shortly to implement some recommendations of the Archer report on operations of the police department.

The major decisions, including staff changes, however, will have to await the appointment of the successor to John Blackstock as chief constable, Mayor R. B. Wilson said.

REVAMPING SET

The mayor added that "a number of recommendations would be implemented quickly" among the most important being the revamping of the charge office which came in for scathing criticism from former RCMP superintendent George Archer.

The commission met briefly behind closed doors yesterday morning with senior officers of the force.

SEARCH FOR CHIEF

The mayor said there is still nothing to report on the search for a new chief that was touched off by Chief Blackstock's resignation on the eve of the publication of Mr. Archer's survey of the department.

NANAIMO — Logging operations in the Nanaimo area have been halted due to an extreme high forest fire hazard.

An increase in humidity could put the crews back to work today. Forecast from the department of transport at Nanaimo airport shows little change in the immediate future.

Temperatures over the weekend reached 88.9 and dropped to 75 Monday.

DUNCAN—Logging operations have been restricted to early shift or shut-down in the Cowichan area because of the continuing hot, dry weather.

Happy Archer Report

Seeks World Title

Gift Began Family Sport

By TED SHACKLEFORD

Eleven years ago Frank Jones, a VMD welder, bought a child-sized bow-and-arrows set for his eight-year-old son, Bill. Next month, as a result, Frank travels to Helsinki, Finland, to contest the world archery championships.

It will be the first time Canada has been represented in the world contest. The championship begins July 22 and Frank hopes to leave Victoria about four days before then.

★ ★ ★

The Jones family, 316 Brunswick, heard the good news over the weekend.

But Frank Jones' trip to Helsinki—paid for by the Canadian Archery Association—is only one of a series of unusual events which started when he bought Bill his bow and arrows.

So Bill could learn how to handle the bow safely, Frank enrolled him in the Victoria Bowmen's Club. And then he got interested himself and took up the sport.

★ ★ ★

This left Mrs. Jones—"Mac" to her friends—an archery widow, so she took up the sport, too.

And when daughter Susan was old enough, she joined.

But there's more yet. The Jones family not only took up the sport, they darn near took it over.

Frank won the Canadian championship last year, retaining the title he won in 1961. "Mac" won the Canadian field championship for women in 1961 but couldn't defend the title last year as she was in hospital.

★ ★ ★

But she won the Canadian flight championship last year, anyhow.

Bill, now 19, has held the Canadian target championship, the Canadian flight championship, the B.C. target championship and the B.C. field championship. He held the B.C. titles for five years. He now holds the Pacific Northwest archery championship.

Susan, 15 years, already holds the Pacific Northwest clout championship—where the target is laid face up on the ground and contestants 100 yards away drop their arrows onto it—and last year won all the junior girls' events in the Vancouver Island championships.

She also won the junior girls championship in B.C. field and target competition.

★ ★ ★

When Frank gets to Helsinki the Island will also be represented in his equipment—he shoots a bow, with a pull of about 30 pounds, which was made up-Island.

Thieves Take Car Engine

An engine valued at $240 was stolen from a car parked at Oak Bay Avenue and Bank Street, city police said last night.

Brian Newstead, 909 Kings, said the car had been parked at the location for the past three weeks, and he didn't know when the engine was taken.

The battery and a tire were also taken from the car.

On Nanaimo Waters

Speeders Warned

NANAIMO—Charges will be laid against speeding boaters in Newcastle Island passage, Nanaimo harbormaster John Dunham has warned.

Mr. Dunham said warnings have been made for the past two years but no charges ever laid. He said protests are still coming in and severe action will now be taken.

Commercial vessels and pleasure craft are equally to blame for speeding in the channel running from Millstone River mouth, Nanaimo Yacht Club to Brechin between Newcastle Island and Nanaimo, the harbormaster said.

Speed limit in the passage is eight miles per hour or whatever speed a vessel can travel without creating a wake high enough to disturb other vessels.

Water Record Set

NANAIMO—Water consumption in Nanaimo broke all previous records over the weekend as the mercury soared. The Greater Nanaimo Water District reports that 8,325,000 gallons were drained from the reservoir as the hoses and sprinklers went into operation around the clock against the withering heat.

Water Commissioner C. F. Newcombe reports that the high use of water is not threatening the supply and there is no immediate danger of a shortage.

However, workmen at the reservoirs are busy trying to eliminate silting caused by the rapid draw-off.

ALBERNI — Four Nanaimo residents were taken to West Coast General Hospital following a spectacular crash at the Rogers Creek fill on Port Alberni Highway.

Driver and three other occupants of a car driven by Matthew Nault, Nanaimo, were hospitalized. None was seriously injured.

The Nault car, proceeding east on the highway, was in collision with a car being driven west by John Mariotiello, Port Alberni. The Nanaimo car rolled over onto its roof on the road.

Taken to hospital were Mr. and Mrs. Nault and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gorosh.

★ ★ ★

DUNCAN—Richard Magnuson, Duncan, is in fairly good condition in King's Daughters' Hospital after his small car plunged down a 100-foot embankment at the top of the Government Street hill on Sunday afternoon. Police here said that the vehicle had been proceeding towards Duncan when it left the road.

The timely arrival of a passing motorist is believed to have saved Mr. Magnuson from more serious injury. The unknown observer phoned for an ambulance when he saw the vehicle plunge off the road and down the brush-covered embankment, which concealed the car and its injured driver.

Dairy Herd Records High

DUNCAN — Inspector Jack Woof of the Cowichan Dairy Herd Improvement Association said a total of 42 recently completed records included 30 Holstein, six Jersey, four Guernsey, one Ayrshire and one crossbreed.

Sixteen out of 28 mature cows produced more than 440 pounds of butterfat and seven two-year-olds out of 14 produced 365 pounds of butterfat.

Winners of the sacks of feed were: Albert Baumgart with eight-year-old Holstein Ridgeview Sady-marie, 16,021 pounds of milk and 732 pounds of butterfat in 305 days; Case van Jarrsveld with two-year-old Holstein Henny, 12,238 pounds of milk and 467 pounds of butterfat during the same periods.

The high herd average was won by G. A. van Jaarsveld with 1,674 pounds of milk and 678 pounds of butterfat. The prizes were donated by B & K Milling Company, Cowichan Creamery Association and Buckerfields.

SOCIAL CREDIT WINS EASILY

EDMONTON (CP)—Alberta's Social Credit party, in power for 28 years, scored a landslide victory in Monday's general election.

The result was the same as the last general election in 1959 — a Social Credit majority of 57.

Complete party standings showed Social Credit with 60 members in the new 65-seat legislature. Liberals doubled their strength to two, a Coalition member was re-elected but Progressive Conservatives and the New Democratic Party failed to elect a single member.

In the 1959 election for a 65-seat House, Social Credit elected 61 members, Liberals one, Conservatives one, Coalition one, and Independent Social Credit one.

Others	5,482 (2)

All three opposition leaders lost on their first bid for a legislature seat.

Progressive Conservative Leader Milton Harradence was defeated by Donald Fleming of the Social Credit party in Calgary West.

Neil Reimer, New Democratic Party leader, failed to unseat Lou Heard of Social Credit in Edmonton Northeast.

Liberal Leader David Hunter lost to Social Credit's Antonio Aloisio in Athabasca.

Premier Manning won easy personal victory in Edmonton Strathcona East where one of his opponents was Conservative Oscar Kruger, all-star defensive half for Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Football Conference.

Liberals picked up Calgary Glenmore with candidate Bill Dickie. The constituency was won in the last election by Conservative Ernest Watkins, who retired from politics.

Two other opposition members from the last legislature were in close contests. Liberal Mike Maccagno was ahead in Lac la Biche and Earl Ansley, Independent Social Credit, trailed in Leduc.

Closest battle was in Pumka constituency where Neville Roper, Independent Social Credit, and Glen Johnston, seeking re-election for the Social Credit party, exchange leads.

Premier Manning said he was not surprised by the result.

March Marks Revolt

BERLIN (UPI) — West Berliners, 1,000 strong marched on the Berlin wall last night in a demonstration against the Soviet's crushing of the East German revolt 10 years ago. Police used water cannon to drive back the crowd.

West Berlin police rushed reinforcements to the Friedrichstrasse crossing point — the U.S. army's Checkpoint Charlie —and sealed off the border before the crowd, made up mostly of youths, could touch off a new East-West incident.

TOWARD WALL

The 1,000 demonstrators had been taking part in a torchlight parade held to mourn the workers who died in the revolt of June 17, 1953. Two columns of 500 each split off and marched toward the wall down Stresemannstrasse in the American sector.

They began shouting, "Freedom for the zone."

Several hundred demonstrators marched toward Checkpoint Charlie.

West Berlin police turned a water cannon on the crowd approaching the checkpoint and drove it back.

TORCHLIGHT

The torchlight parade was held after 100,000 West Berliners rallied in front of City Hall for German unity and self-determination for East Germans.

The parade route was from city hall to a monument on the Kreuzberg Hill. The parade to t monument was orderly, but hundreds of demonstrators aroused by hotheads split off and marched to the wall.

Earlier Monday, the East German Communists charged that West German "bandits" damaged the trade ministry in East Berlin with a bomb and set other bombs that did not explode. However, the building did not appear to be damaged.

NO INJURIES

No injuries were reported in the explosion about 100 yards from the wall. Western officials said the bombs were apparently set off by anti-Communist East Germans.

As the demonstrators approached the area last night, they faced a cordon of 200 police, who ordered the marchers to disperse and tried to persuade them to leave the border.

"You can't act this way on a solenm anniversary," a police officer shouted to the crowd.

Leaders of the march on the wall said the demonstration was organized by the Peter Fechter Action Group, named after a young refugee who was shot when trying to escape and then left to die.

Grudging Vote Backs Mac

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Macmillan won a grudging vote of confidence Monday night after a slashing opposition attack on his handling of the Profumo-Keeler sex and security scandal and defections in his own Conservative party.

By 321 to 252, the 69-year-old Macmillan was given a mandate in the House of Commons to carry on as chief of government.

But he is expected to step down soon, possibly this summer, and let a younger man try to clean up the Conservative party's badly-smudged image.

The Conservatives normally have a 97-seat edge over the combined opposition in the House but Macmillan's victory margin was only 69.

The closeness of the vote reflected growing discontent among Conservatives with Macmillan's leadership. One Conservative suggested in the debate that Macmillan step aside soon.

28 TORIES ABSTAIN

Twenty - eight Conservatives abstained from voting as an expression of their displeasure with Macmillan's stewardship.

Reuters news agency said the outcome was a heavy moral defeat for Macmillan, since before the opposition began its massive onslaught on him in Ward was remanded on a charge of living on the earnings of prostitution. Police said further similar charges would be laid against him.

Red Spacegal Beats Cooper, Sings to Stars

* * *

MOSCOW (UPI) — Dimple-chinned Valentina (Seagull) Tereshkova, singing to the stars, beat the American man-in-space record Monday.

Moscow Radio reported the 26-year-old brunette had completed 23 orbits that had carried her more than a half million miles through space. She messaged her mother not to worry.

Her second day in space put her ahead of America's space star, Gordon Cooper, who completed 22.9 orbits last month, and she was still orbiting.

* * *

The Russians also disclosed that the first woman to explore the mysteries of space had scored another cosmic first:

Flying to within 3.1 miles of her companion astronaut, Lt.-Col. Valery (Hawk) Bykovsky in the closest that space ships ever have come to a linkup.

Just before the whirling pair went to sleep in their separate space ships again last night, Tass news agency said Valentina sent this message:

"Tell Mama, and all the mothers of the world, that I have great confidence in my ship. It was built by the Soviet people — it is a very dependable machine."

* * *

The Tass correspondent, reporting from the "flight control centre," also said that following a conversation with Bykovsky, she could be heard singing.

"But it was impossible to recognize the song Valentina was singing to the stars," Tass said.

It is said that in between conversations, the flight control centre broadcast Tchaikovsky's First Piano Concero to the orbiting couple at Bykovsky's request. Tchaikovsky also is one of Valentina's favorites.

* * *

Bykovsky's orbiting time had changed from an original 88.4 minutes to a flat 88 minutes and there was some speculation he might have to be brought back to earth before the end of the eight days originally planned for his flight.

By 10 p.m. Monday, Bykovsky had made 54 trips around the earth and Valentina had made 23.

One report mentioned the possibility of a third cosmonaut being placed in orbit soon, but there was no official confirmation of this.

* * *

Several hours after "Valya," as she has come to be known, entered her second day in space she had committed only one known miscue.

Moscow Radio reported she overslept during her first slumber in the hurtling Vostok 6. The chief designer of the Russian girl's space ship failed to raise her when he signaled her from the ground.

But after some minutes delay, during which the caller contacted Bykovsky, Miss Tereshkova came on the radio and apologized for oversleeping.

* * *

There seemed to be no chance the two space voyagers would try to make a physical contact in space. Their trajectories were slightly different although both were traveling in the same 65 degree orbit in relation to the equator.

Tass said more precise data of the trajectory of the two flights showed that Sunday the plump but attractive cosmonette and the darkly handsome cosmonaut had flown within five kilometers (3.1 miles) of each other.

This bettered the four miles apart achieved by Russia's last space twins, Pavel Popovich and Andrian Nikolayev, last August.

Since Popovich and Nikolayev reported later they had sighted each other, presumably Bykovsky and the brunette cosmonette could see each other even more clearly.

At 2 p.m. Monday, Bykovsky, 28-year-old Red air force pilot, started his fourth day in space. He then had completed

Cosmonaut Romance Rumored

MOSCOW (UPI) — Those romance rumors already are starting up about the world's first space woman, Valentina Tereshkova.

Her boy-friend is supposed to be fellow cosmonaut Andrian Nikolayev, the only bachelor among Russia's five experienced spacemen.

* * *

Some stories have gone so far as to say they are engaged and hope to be married after Valentina returns to earth.

Others say they are just good friends, as any man and woman working close together in the same profession might become.

* * *

Nikolayev, who sailed through a 64-orbit journey around the earth last August, was said earlier to have had another girl-friend who broke with him when he went secretly into cosmonaut training and never could explain to her the reason for his long absences.

Stand-In Was Ready

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet press disclosed Monday that Russia has a number of cosmonettes and one had been ready to replace Valentina Tereshkova on her history-making flight into space if it had been necessary.

As usual, the woman's name was not disclosed.

The Communist Party newspaper Pravda said the stand-by cosmonette is "just as talented as Valya (diminutive for Valentina), able to take facts into account . . . and (was) ready to replace her at any minute in the cabin of the cosmic space ship."

Pravda said both girls watched the launching of Valentina's space twin, Valery Bykovsky, in Vostok 5.

Valentina 'Feels Fine'

Valentina Tereshkova, 26, first woman launched by Russians into orbit around earth, apparently takes food from container during training session. Soviet news agency Tass said Miss Tereshkova as entire factory worker, "withstood well the orbiting of space ship Vostok 6. She feels fine." (AP Photofax.)

Confers with Leaders

JFK Seeks Rights Plan

* * *

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy conferred with congressional leaders of both parties Monday in his search for a civil rights program that one conferee said "will cover everything."

This assessment came from Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois who told reporters he believes there is an "area of agreement" between the Republicans and administration leaders on a number of proposals.

* * *

Kennedy continued his efforts to ease racial tension by calling in 200 religious leaders for discussion. The president wants them to exert moral leadership in their communities to bring about racial equality.

Kennedy expects to send a special message to Congress Wednesday outlining a series of civil rights proposals and signalling the start of what promises to become a bitter senate battle with southerners attempting to prevent a vote by filibustering.

In an effort to round up as much national support as possible behind his program, Kennedy plans another meeting with state governors today.

Race Violence Threatened

CAMBRIDGE, Md. (UPI) —A Negro leader told a cheering rally last night that demonstrations will resume unless suspended negotiations over racial grievances begin again. He said the federal government had promised to move into the situation if necessary.

Reginald Robinson, representing the Student Non-Violent Co-ordinating Committee, said Negroes will take to the streets of Cambridge in defiance of national guard troops unless negotiations are under way by 8 p.m. today.

Crowds Pay Tribute To Murdered Negro

WASHINGTON (AP) — Solemn Negroes by the hundreds, young and old, turned out Monday to honor the memory of Medgar Evers, slain Mississippi field secretary for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

About 500 persons, including a few whites, marched a mile from Union Station to a funeral home behind the hearse carrying his body.

Other hundreds watched from sidewalks and homes and another big crowd assembled near the funeral home to see six Negro desegregation leaders and Arnold Felman, director of the American Veterans Committee, carrying the white, flag-draped coffin inside.

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Charles Evers, brother of slain integration leader Medgar Evers, sought Monday to settle an internal struggle for Negro leadership in the tense civil rights battle in this staunchly segregated Mississippi capital.

Whatever the outcome, new street demonstrations were anticipated here. Other protests were expected to resume in the south after a weekend of violence in North Carolina and protests in other southern states.

The fight pitted militant Negroes demanding immediate action at whatever price against the disciples of the non-violent movement whose leader is Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. of Atlanta.

Rocky Point Explosion Injures Two

By BOB PETHICK

Two civilian naval workers were seriously injured in an explosion at Rocky Point arsenal yesterday.

Most seriously hurt was Frank A. Gibbons, 45, of 1045 Esquimalt Road. He was listed in poor condition in St. Joseph's Hospital with injuries to his arms, hands and abdomen.

J. A. Valentine, 62, of 622 Head Street, was in fair condition. His left hand had to be amputated as a result of the explosion.

BLOOD ON WALLS

Blood spattered the walls of the heavily-constructed explosives proving building. Valentine, though in great pain, remained conscious and stumbled from the building to get help.

First aid was administered by fellow inspector Hal Wallace during the wait for the ambulance. One man was conveyed in an ambulance from Belmont Park, the second in an ambulance from HMC Dockyard.

HEARING OPENS

The navy immediately opened a preliminary hearing into events leading up to the explosion that injured the two inspectors of naval ordnance.

Both are veterans in the department of national defence and were conducting routine proving tests at the time of the explosion.

PREPARE BOOSTER

A naval spokesman said the two inspectors were preparing an explosive booster enclosed in a brass container for routine test firing. The component being tested was two ounces of explosive.

Both men are members of a close-knit inspectors' team that has been together for more than 16 years. Friends said they are popular members of the staff.

The navy last night officially classed the explosion as "minor." There was no damage to the building where the explosion occurred.

A spokesman stressed the buildings are designed so that an explosion in one will not be a hazard to other buildings.

UNAWARE OF ACCIDENT

Due to the way buildings are dispersed for safety, most of the workers at the arsenal were unaware an accident had occurred until quitting time at 4:30 p.m. The explosion went off about 3:30 p.m.

It was believed to be the first accident with explosives to occurt at Rocky Point. A full scale enquiry will likely follow the preliminary hearing.

Pest Plans Changed

OTTAWA (CP) — A conference of North American forestry experts was told Monday that public resentment against the use of chemical insect controls is forcing the U.S. forest service into a crash program of research on biological control.

Edward Cliff, chief of the U.S. forest service, warned that "a strong body of public resentment" has formed as the result of Rachel Carson's best-seller, Silent Spring.

Vote Called 'Club'

Dock Talks Go On

VANCOUVER (CP) — The two parties in a threatened longshoremen's strike met Monday and will meet again today.

George McKee, general manager of the British Columbia Shipping Federation, said after the meetings:

"We're still talking and we'll be back again tomorrow . . . I'm pleased that the talks are continuing."

He declined to discuss what was talked about with representatives of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (CLC).

It was the first meeting since members of the union voted 93.5 per cent to empower the executive to call a strike if necessary.

Moose Roundup Ends in Failure
